By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WASHINGTON, April 14.

THE PRESIDENT, on his special train, pulled into Washington from his Florida fishing trip at ten o'clock Friday morning and everybody seemed glad to see him.

Mrs. Roosevelt was waiting at the station with their son, Elliott, and their daughter, Mrs. Dall. They boarded the train at once.

Then a delegation of cabinet members went on board, shook hands and marched out the other end of the car. Secretary Hull was there, and Postmaster General Farley, who looked as healthy as a colored advertisement of a food for infants.

Also waiting for the train were solemn Senators led by Vice President Garner, and there was a delegation from the House of Representatives, a very big delegation. How would you like to have such a reception?

AND THAT WAS only half. The Marine Band was there, glorious in crimson, or scarlet, or whatever the reddest red is called. It never played "Hail to the Chief" more loudly or more sweetly.

There were fresh relays of reporters, cameras, sound recorders, and plenty of sound to record. You will see and hear it at your theater, in the Hearst Newsreel.

THE MARINE BAND having played "Happy Days Are Here Again," as an encore, and gone home, one or two things disturb you a little. There is a revival of the effort to kick Uncle Sam into the World Court, back door of the League of Nations. It should be safe to assume that the President will prevent that.

After nations that control the league skip their June payment, as they will do, and the President talks plainly to them about being in absolute default, as his friends believe he will do, he would not want that question referred to any World Court, controlled by welching nations that have agreed to swindle Uncle Sam.

HARSH LANGUAGE, but not harsh enough. Is there any reason why nations, dishonestly welching on a debt of honor, and legally binding, should not render purposely dishonest World Court decisions?

The court would be made up of Frenchmen, Britishers, etc. Why hope that they would be, internationally, any more honest than bigger men in their nations that say:

"Yes, we welch. What of it?"

Hiram Johnson, of California, said all that need be said, in 1930:

"It is an amazing intellectual stultification to assert that the so-called World Court—which is in reality the League Court—is not a part of the League of Nations."

The people of this country have declared against the League of Nations, and President Roosevelt will not allow himself to be blindfolded and led into the League through the World Court backdoor. The people elected him to cary out Roosevelt policies, not Woodrow Wilson policies.

WASHINGTON believes the McLeod bill, that would give depositors their money locked up in closed banks, the government taking all bank assets, will NOT be passed.

The bill's opponents say repaying national bank depositors alone would cost the government fifteen hundred million dollars. What of it? The people are deprived of their money because they trusted the NATIONAL bank system. Has the nation no responsibility there? It could send, on a telephone call, ninety million dollars to one single Chicago bank in trouble.

Why not hear the call of millions of depositors, also in trouble? Let the government get what it can out of the closed banks' assets, pay the depositors now, and put fifteen hundred million dollars in circulation immediately.

NO INTEREST - BEARING bond issue would be necessary, you know

No special bonds were printed that night when it was hastily decided to send ninety millions to one banker, wisely decided, if the sending prevented a panic that might have spread.

The government has authority to print and issue currency up to three billions now. Currency issued for bank depositors could be retired, if desired, with funds realized on closed bank assets.

The government has pumped out many billions for "relief" of various kinds. Relief for honest, thrifty depositors whose money was impounded would surely fit into the Roosevelt program.

APART FROM all that, you observe that Germany has treated herself to a little moratorium, which means a stop-payment-period. Germany's exports are falling, dangerously. She should ask herself why.

MR. JOHN DILLINGER, who shoots and runs away, and lives to shoot another day, is said to have "raided a police station, to steal a bulletproof waist coat." Gilbert and Sullivan could have written an opera around Dillinger.

MUNITIONS MAKERS will be investigated to find out if they are a trust That seems old-fashioned, but the investigation might usefully investigate the persistent demand for battleships that will be hereafter only fifty million dollar targets for air bombs. Who is it that forces the "reconditioning" of obsolete battleships, at a cost of scores of millions? Who has succeeded in preventing any conclusive tests as to what airplanes will do to battleships in future wars?

Brown Murder Solution Seen, Suspects Held

MRS. BRADWAY BROWN

THREE JAILED IN MYSTERY

International News Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., April 14.—A tale of tireless and brilliant sleuthing was climaxed in real life here today when Ellis Parker, grizzled Chief of Burlington County detectives, declared the murder of Bradway Brown more than a year ago has been solved.

The arrest and indictment of three men has ended an investigation that began January 13, 1933, when Brown, young and wealthy printing company executive, was found shot to death in front of the telephone of his home near Palmyra, N. J.

The suspects are in separate jails—one in Mt. Holly, another in New York and a third in Eastern State Penitentiary. They are Edward Adamsy, 28, jailed here; Adam Szewczak, imprisoned at Philadelphia in connection with a $125,000 bond robbery; Solomon Lutz, a barber, confined in Tombs Prison, New York.

Investigation of the murder and suicide in 1929 of his close friends, Ruth Mowbray Wilson, daughter of a Moorestown (N. J.) financier, and her former fiance, Horace (Red) Roberts, involved Brown and was linked to the motive in his own murder.

Parker charged that the automobile used by the two robbers who slew Brown was owned by Lutz.

Bradway Brown was the husband of Mrs. Ruth McCauley Brown, of Beaver Falls. Since the killing Mrs. Brown has been living in Beaver Falls with her mother, Mrs. E. H. A. McCauley, who was Secretary of Welfare in Gov. John S. Fisher's cabinet.

Bradway Brown and Miss McCauley met when both were students at Swarthmore College.

Night Club Owner's Son Held After Quarrel

Mrs. Mildred Simonson, 23, 6021 Rodman street, mother of two children was shot four times and seriously wounded early today during a quarrel, police say, with Louis Ferraro, 21, son of a night club operator of 228 Omega street.

Mrs. Simonson was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital where the police arrested Ferraro on a charge of felonious shooting.

The young woman at first contended she had shot herself, the police said, but later after Ferraro had been arrested, she admitted, according to the police that Ferraro had shot her.

She said:

"I thought he was going to leave me, and I guess I had been nagging at him so much he became angry."

Ferraro admitted firing the shots, police said.

Mary Mammay, 18, friend of Mrs. Simonson, who was in the room at the time of the shooting, also was taken into custody as a material witness.

Answering a radio alarm on the shooting, Radio Car Crew Albert Buck and Joseph Thompson went to the hospital, where they found Ferraro. He had taken the young mother there for emergency treatment.

The police said Ferraro had been living at the Rodman street address, although Ferraro gave his home address as 228 Omega street.

The police took the two children to the East Liberty Police Station and provided them with breakfast. They are Betty, 4, and Caroline, 2.

Later they were taken to the Juvenile Detention Home pending the recovery of their mother, and the outcome of the case.

The shooting, police charged, followed a quarrel Mrs. Simonson was shot four times, three of the bullets penetrating her abdomen. She was given emergency treatment by Dr. T. M. Hadden.

Bare Plot to Kill Official in Wreck

VIENNA, April 14.—(AP.)—Train wreckers who derailed the Vienna - Paris - London express Tuesday were trying to kill Emil Fey, vice chancellor of Austria, it was learned today.

Fey was traveling to Salzburg in the salon coach of the train when the locomotive, mail car and baggage car plunged into a ditch between Wels and Linz, capital of Upper Austria.

McNair Issues Daylight Saving Proclamation

Mayor McNair today capitulated to the advocates of daylight saving and issued a proclamation calling for observance of "fast time" from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September.

The Mayor capitulated after a personal appeal by Council President Robert Garland, "father of daylight saving," who, learning that today was the Mayor's twentieth wedding anniversary, told him:

"Today would be a good day to sign the proclamation."

Meanwhile, the McNair postcard poll on fast time stood at 22,000 for and 13,000 against.

Many of the cards which have poured into the Mayor's office have treated the subject in poetic or humorous vein.

The poetry sugested to him the idea of putting his brief gubernatorial platform into verse. Here it is:

"Wages high,
Prices low to buy,
Through governmental barriers removed.
Production and exchange improved."

Any one line of it would furnish any candidate enough material to keep going until the primary, the Mayor guarantees.

Some of the cards in the postcard referendum which departed somewhat from the usual ballot form follow:

"I am opposed to Rocky Mountain time in Oakland, Point Breeze and Hays, Pa."
(Signed) "Dr. Jeykell."

"I am in favor of the seven-cent nickel."
(Signed) ELMER ZILCH, Balleyhoo Terrace.

"I am opposed to Mayor McNair."
(Signed) WILLIAM A. MAGEE.

(Check by handwriting experts showed this last to be a forgery).

"I am in favor of blue suits for Pittsburgh Santa Clauses next year instead of red."

BANK PAYOFF DRIVE GAINS IN HOUSE

McLeod Bill Backers Ignore Hostility of Administration

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The House drive for relief to depositors of closed banks was pressed today despite administration opposition.

With 145 House members backing the bill of Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, to have the Reconstruction Finance Corporation take over assets of closed national and Federal Reserve banks and pay depositors in full, a group was seeking to expand the measure to include state banks.

Although House leaders held the petition to discharge the Banking Committee from consideration of the McLeod bill had been nullified, the McLeod bill backers were fighting along other lines.

A petition to the House Rules Committee to place the McLeod bill on preferred status was taken under consideration by that committee.

While Chairman Bankhead (Dem.), of Alabama, planned to seek administration advice on the measure, the McLeod bill supporters were ready to file a petition to discharge this committee after a waiting period of seven days.

FORCED ACTION SEEN

The Rules Committee, it was admitted, could further block the bill by parliamentary maneuvers. But backers of the McLeod bill believed the sentiment in the House was so strong that some action will be forced.

Representative Dingell (Dem.), of Michigan, held in abeyance his petition to resist adjournment of Moore planned to round up the three suspects today and, if physicians permit, take them to the hospital for the voice identification.

Stratigos was held up in the bowling alleys and robbed of $15. He was operated on yesterday. Physicians have little hope of saving more than the sight of one eye.

DEATH TRAIN'S SPEED BLAMED

WASHINGTON, April 14—(AP.)—Possibility that a dead man was at the throttle of the engine of the Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train which plunged off a viaduct in Pittsburgh, February 26, carrying 11 persons to death, was suggested today by the Interstate Commerce Commission's safety bureau.

Excessive speed on a curve was blamed by the bureau for the wreck, in which 46 persons were injured. The train ran the last 24 miles of its run, including one stop, in 26 minutes.

The speed of trains on this curve under the rules was supposed to be not over 25 miles an hour. The bureau said:

"In view of the circumstances, it appears that Engineman Shaw must have been either dead or so incapacitated as to prevent him from taking the proper steps to bring his train under control."

Secret Lindy Grilling Bared

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—A hitherto undisclosed grilling of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by a Department of Justice agent during the flier's recent visit to the capital today was expected to be a subject of inquiry when the Black air mail investigating committee reconvenes next Tuesday.

Lindbergh, it was revealed, was questioned for more than two hours by Col. Carl Ristine, special assistant attorney general assigned to the Black committee.

The questioning took place at the Postoffice Department immediately after the "Lone Eagle's" appearance before the Senate Postoffice Committee hearing last month.

Lindbergh was asked to go to the Postoffice Department and give some information concerning the American air transport system. Upon arrival there, he found not only Col. Ristine but also A. G. Patterson, chief investigator of the Black committee, and George A. Glendon, personal secretary to Attorney General Cummings, who intended to act as stenographer.

Lindbergh telephoned his attorney, Col. Henry Breckinridge, in New York, who, according to reports, advised the flier to protest against the presence of Patterson. The latter withdrew and Col. Ristine conducted the questioning in the presence of Glendon.

Republican members of the Black committee are expected to demand Col. Ristine's appearance before the committee next week to explain the nature of the questioning.

LIQUOR HIDDEN IN GAS METER

Max Rudick, 45, proprietor of a store at 1513 Wylie avenue, faced arraignment in Center Avenue Police Court today because, police said, one of two gas meters in his place yielded not gas, but moonshine whisky.

After searching the store, Inspector John H. Schnurr and Lieut. Patrick Dixon sighted the meters. They reached behind one, loosely attached to the wall, and found five pints of moonshine in it, they reported. They took Rudick, meter and moonshine to the police station.

An examination there disclosed that three shelves had replaced the mechanism in the meter and provided enough space for several dozen bottles.

MEADVILLE, Pa., April 14.—(AP.)—Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, opened his gubernatorial campaign in Crawford County yesterday at a conference with a group of about 25 Republican leaders.

The candidate for the G. O. P. nomination emphasized his belief in "home rule," stating that "not all government should be taken to Harrisburg and Washington."

Pirates-Nats Exhibition Game Rained Out

The Pirates' exhibition game with the Washington Senators, scheduled at Forbes Field this afternoon, was canceled at noon today because of inclement weather. Intermittent showers, given a pronounced chill by traces of snow, made playing conditions impossible.

The Corsairs late today are to leave for Louisville, Ky., where they will participate in an exhibition game tomorrow. Many of the Pittsburgh batterymen went directly to Louisville from Terre Haute, Ind., where the Pirates downed the Chicago White Sox, 3-2, yesterday.

Manager Joe Cronin, former Pirate shortstop, also steered his American League champions into town this morning, and after taking a long look at the lowering skies, prepared to steer 'em back to Washington.

Father Slays Two Children, Self

Wife Bares Quarrel Prior to Fatal Tragedy

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 14.—A young husband, whose wife had left him, died today after he had shot and killed his two small children and then shot himself.

Gleason Roupe, 27, fired fatal bullets into the foreheads of Betty Roupe, 2, and Gleason Roupe, Jr., 4, tucked them into bed, then lay down on an adjoining bed and fired a rifle at himself.

Today only his wife, Mabel Gregg Roupe, her face red with tears, remained to tell the story of their quarrel which preceded the shooting.

She discounted reports that her husband had taken the three lives because he was heart-broken over her departure.

She said that the day before the shooting he had ordered her out of their home at 250 Park avenue.

He was rough with their son and didn't like their daughter, the mother asserted.

And the Coroner's report indicated that the skull of Gleason, Jr., had been fractured before he was shot.

Two-year-old Betty apparently had raised her right hand to her head before she was shot, for the bullet ripped through her second finger.

At the Washington funeral director's today the widow composed herself long enough to claim all three bodies. She sobbed:

"Thursday morning he packed my clothes and laid them out on the dresser and on the bed. I started to put them away, and he said, 'Take your clothes and get out.'

"I sent my brother, Edwin, who boarded with me, to get my brother Ralph, and he came back to take me home to my father. My husband said, 'If you don't get out I'll throw you out,' and he warned me that if I came back again with somebody alse, 'I'll shoot you all.'

"He had hit me several times, the last time last September. H put me out of the house in September. I stayed away a week on my father's farm. He had burned several of my pictures."

The Roupes were married April 30, 1929, at Wellsburg, W. Va.

Both husband and wife were employed by the Hazel-Atlas Glass Company, she working daytime, he at night.

Today the wife returned again to her father, Isaac Gregg, on his farm at Lone Pine. As she told the story of her life with Roupe her two sisters fainted.

SENATE, HOUSE ACT TO PATCH DIFFERENCES ON TAX BILL

PARLEY SEEKS TO TIGHTEN LOOPHOLES

Administration Gets Setback at Hands Of 'High-Raters'

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The administration's new tax bill, rewritten by the Senate to impose $511,000,000 more income, corporation, estate and gift taxes next year, was sent to conference today to compromise differences with the House.

A progressive bloc, fighting for higher taxes on wealthy citizens and giant corporations, forced a number of concessions from administration leaders.

They joined Democratic chieftains, too, to close scores of loopholes in administrative sections of the present law, through which rich taxpayers have escaped taxes in recent years.

'SMALL MAN'S' BILL

As passed by the Senate, the bill was a "little fellows" measure. It shifted the burden of taxation from persons with net incomes of $9,000 or less to persons with larger incomes. The Senate added $82,000,000 to the existing income taxes, but placed this additional burden on the "big fellows." It reduced present taxes of persons with net incomes of $9,000 or less.

The Senate added $248,000,000 of new or higher taxes to the $263,000,000 increased taxation approved by the House.

The administration suffered three major defeats during Senate consideration of the bill. First, the Senate approved the Couzens super-income tax, a levy of 10 per cent additional on all income taxes computed under the new rates. Next, the Senate defied President Roosevelt by imposing a 3 cents a pound tax on the processing of imported vegetable oils and copra, after the executive requested an exemption for Philippine imports. Third, it approved the LaFollette amendment, forcing complete publicity of all income tax returns.

CHANGE IS SEEN

The LaFollette publicity plan undoubtedly will be modified in conference. It would make income tax returns a matter of public record, subject to complete examination and inspection by any citizen.

Progressives won other victories through concessions from administration leaders. One was an increase in surtaxes. This was accomplished by raising the earned income limit from $8,000 to $20,000, on which a 10 per cent credit will be allowed and then increasing the lowest surtax on income between $4,000 and $6,000 from 4 to 5 per cent.

Another concession was a $92,000,000 increase in estate taxes. The increase will come from higher rates in upper brackets, including a new maximum of 60 per cent—from the old 45 per cent—on portions of estates in excess of $10,000,000.

MAY ADJOURN MAY 15

The two biggest controversies in conference will involve the La Follette publicity amendment and the Senate's action in prohibiting consolidated corporation returns. The Couzens tax probably will be approved.

President Roosevelt expects Congress to wind up the session by May 15.

He believes the major portion of the recovery measures which he planned for enactment at the present session have been acted upon.

A conference with Senate leaders today was expected to produce a fairly concrete program of action covering the remainder of the session.

'HAZY ON ISSUES'

He frankly said at the first press conference after returning from his fishing cruise that there was much he did not know about current questions at present. By Monday Mr. Roosevelt expects a complete "fill-in" on pending issues.

Vice President Garner, Senate Leader Robinson, of Arkansas, Senator Byrnes (Dem.), of South Carolina, Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, and a number of other prominent Democrats were slated to come to the White House for today's conclave.

Tomorrow night Speaker Rainey, of the House, will head a delegation.

JONES DEFENDS NRA STAND

His policy of withholding criminal prosecution of National Recovery Administration violators up to now was defended today by Edward N. Jones, Pennsylvania NRA compliance director. He denounced persons attempting to make political capital out of attacks on the NRA as "chiselers."

Explaining there has been little prosecution because most of the violations took place under the President's temporary blanket code, Mr. Jones added:

"Next Monday there becomes effective the authority granted to me as state director to turn over to the federal district attorneys in Pennsylvania for prosecution under the criminal section of the National Industrial Recovery Act cases of wilful or flagrant non-compliance with NRA codes."

Although not specifically named, Jones' statement was believed aimed at Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, who recently attacked NRA enforcement.

Johnson Issues NRA Retail Edict

An order from Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson that retail prices of all articles under the retail code, except drugs and allied products, must include allowance for wages of labor of not less than 10 per cent of the article sold, was announced by the Retail Code Authority of Pittsburgh.

It was explained in the order that "cost to the merchant" means an actual net delivered cost, less all discounts or current replacement cost, whichever is lower. The order becomes effective next Thursday.

PENNA. BANKING LOANS UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP.)—Approval of Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to 94 closed Pennsylvania banks was announced yesterday by Dr. William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking.

Final approval of the loans must be sought in the courts before depositors will benefit from federal aid.

One bank, the Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue, already has received final approval of its RFC loan. Seven others have obtained necessary court sanction.

Final approval of the 94 loans announced yesterday will mean dividend checks for about a million depositors whose funds have been tied up since their banks closed.

FLIES TO SEEK CANNON DATA

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—Prosecutors sought new evidence in the South today in their efforts to convict Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of violating the Corrupt Practices Act.

Taking advantage of a weekend recess, a member of the prosecuting staff hurried to Florida by airplane to gather new data.

Cannon and his secretary, Miss Ada L. Burroughs, are charged with failing to report all contributions to the 1928 anti-Smith campaign they directed in the South.

Roger Babb, assistant District Attorney, was the one hurried to Tampa, Fla., to obtain testimony of a worker in the Virginia anti-Smith campaign—George N. Conrad, of Harrisonburg, Va.

The jury heard a statement that Cannon said he had destroyed his correspondence after the Hoover-Smith campaign so that anyone delving into his files "would find nothing."

Khaki Shirt Leader Guilty of Perjury

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Art J. Smith, national leader of the Khaki Shirts of America, was convicted of perjury last night by a Queens County jury.

Smith was convicted of perjuring himself by saying he saw Athos Terzani fire the shot that killed Antonio Fierro in a riot which broke up a Khaki Shirt meeting in Astoria, Queens, last fall. Terzani was acquitted of the slaying despite Smith's identification. Subsequently, Frank Moffer, a member of the Khaki Shirts, pleaded guilty.

M'NAIR BRANDS PITT TEACHER AS 'RED'

Mayor to Attend Next Board Meeting in Warrior's Mood

The next meeting of the board of directors of the University of Pittsburgh will find Mayor McNair there with fire in his eye to start a crusade against what he calls "communistic professors."

The remarks of Dr. B. J. Hovde, professor at the university, came under the eye of the Mayor yesterday, in particular those which suggested that McNair has done the cause of single tax more harm than good.

In wrath, the Mayor announced to reporters:

"I'll debate him at any time. I'll show him up as communistic. Half of these professors out there are communistic anyhow. A lot of them ought to be fired."

The Mayor then asked meditatively if he is a member of the Pitt board of trustees. When told that he is an honorary member, he declared:

"Fine. When's the next meeting?"

On a suggestion attributed to Dr. Hovde that the state maintain schools, the Mayor commented.

"Help him if I'm elected Governor!

"He would go out in five minutes. Another thing—I defy him to quote one speech where I ever used the words single tax or Henry George. I am for economic rent."

ADAMS REFUSES POLICE POST

Maj. Lynn G. Adams, of the Pennsylvania state police, has declined to serve on the police commission proposed by Councilman John J. Kane to put the Police Bureau on a merit basis and drive out corruption and politics.

Maj. Adams, in a letter to Kane, has suggested the name of Bruce Smith, director of the Institute of Public Administration, Bureau of Municipal Research, New York. He stated that he himself is not in a position to give the work necessary time.

Kane has written Smith asking him to be allowed to use his name on a list of five commissioners. The ordinance setting up the commission has been approved in committee and comes up for final vote in Council Monday.

It would grant the commission sweeping powers of investigation based on Council's power to subpena witnesses.

CITY TO APPEAL DEPOSIT CASE

Argument on the claim of the City of Pittsburgh that its deposit of $260,000 in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company should be treated by the State Banking Department as a preferred claim will be heard before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court Monday in Philadelphia.

Deputy State Attorney General David Glick will appear for the state and Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner for the city.

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, ruled when the case was before him that the city did not have a preferred claim and the city took an appeal.

POWER PROBE FORCES JOIN AT CAPITAL

New Yorkers Seeking Added Light on Thayer Charge

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—Investigators from the Empire State were due in town today to see what further help the Federal Trade Commission can give in the inquiry into the relations between the Associated Gas and Electric Company and State Senator W. T. Thayer.

William T. Byrne, New York State Senator heading the investigating committee, and Paul J. McCauley, committee counsel, planned to confer with Robert J. Healy, chief counsel to the Federal Trade Commission, and W. T. Chantland, associate counsel.

It was Chantland who disclosed letters purporting to show that the power company paid expenses incurred by Thayer in a village campaign. Thayer has declared the payments were proper.

The New York investigators were reported to be considering the advisability, or even necessity, of having the Commission's data near to hand.

BIG OIL STRIKE THREATENS

Associated Press.

Strikes and threats of strikes continued to dot the industrial map today.

A bright spot was an announcement that a $300,000 expansion program of the Homer Laughlin China Company at Newell, W. Va., will result in employment of 350 men.

The most serious threat was in the oil industry. The head of the oil workers' union announced in Washington that 100,000 men would be called out within 48 hours if wage differentials planned for the oil code were adopted.

A strike of 68 workers at the Viscose Company factory at Lewistown, Pa., spread throughout the plant. Union leaders estimated 3,000 are out.

From Pottsville, Pa., a call to strike Monday went out to miners in four collieries of the Philadelphia Coal and Iron Company.

5 FACE STORAGE THEFT HEARING

Five men were to be given a hearing in South Side Police Court today following the recovery of household furnishings said by police to have been stolen from the storage room of the White Transfer and Storage Company, 2740 West Liberty avenue.

The articles were found, police said, in a raid at 2429 Carson street, where liquor, also was seized. Mike Trbovich was arrested in the raid on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, police reported.

In connection with the alleged theft, police reported arresting Lawrence White, 34, of 51 Florence place, Mt. Lebanon, a brother of the proprietors of the storage firm. Three others also were arrested for questioning in the case. They were docketed as Walter Sertek, 18, of 634 Fifth avenue; Edward Kenzevich, 23, of 200 Railroad street, Verona, and Mike Grohovoc, 40, of 2733 Carey way.

ANOTHER MINE VOTES PEACE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 14.—(AP.)—Falling in line with the district convention's suggestion, the Maxwell local of the United Mine Workers of America today had voted to return to work Monday, ending a week's "holiday."

The mine is operated by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—A compromise settlement of the Northern West Virginia coal wage differential dispute, which has brought most coal operations in that region to a standstill, was in prospect today.

After conferences with recovery aministration officials, operators of the area appeared confident of a speedy decision by the NRA which would permit Northern West Virginia certain wage advantages over Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Relief Board Ignores Steedle 'Leak' Charge

Charges by State Representative Joseph G. Steedle that "there is a tremendous leak" in the expenditures of $1,500,000 appropriated monthly by state and federal governments was ignored at the monthly meeting of the Allegheny County Relief Board. The board announced through George P. Mills, executive director, that it would remain noncommittal until Douglas P. Falconer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., submits his report to relief heads in Harrisburg.

An inquiry covering five weeks recently was completed by Falconer who plans to make his report April 24.

VAN SWERINGEN DENIES BOND SALE FAKED

Rail King, Indicted in $10,000,000 Deal, Protests Innocence

CLEVELAND, April 14.—(AP.)—O. P. Van Sweringen, railroad king, and two banker friends indicted with him, denied today that they engineered a $10,000,000 "paper" transaction to "dress the front window" of the Union Trust Company, now defunct.

Van Sweringen said, in answer to a county grand jury accusation:

"Perhaps I am a little bit old-fashioned, but I still believe we are living in a government of law, and I feel no concern over an outcome which is going to be determined in the unbiased, considered judgment of the court, where all motives save those in pursuit of justice are excluded."

The jury returned indictments yesterday against Van Sweringen, Joseph R. Nutt, former chairman of the bank's board and former treasurer of the Republican National Committee, and W. M. Baldwin, former president of the institution.

FALSE ENTRY ALLEGED

The charge is that the bankers made a false entry in the books and gave a false report to the State Banking Superintendent. Van Sweringen is accused of abetting them. They faced arraignment in Common Pleas Court today.

Prosecutor Frank Cullitan outlined the transaction as follows:

Van Sweringen visited the J. P. Morgan offices in New York and found Nutt, who previously had asked if Van Sweringen could sell the Cleveland bank some bonds.

Papers were signed whereby the railroad man sold the bank $10,000,000 in government bonds, which he had left with the Morgan company for safekeeping. The Van Sweringen deposit account in the Cleveland bank was credited with $10,112,540, representing the market value, plus accrued interest.

DEAL REVERSED

On the same date, the Union Trust Company statement showed the bank held $10,112,540 in bonds and interest. Nine days later the transaction was reversed and Van Sweringen bought the bonds back. The securities remained in the Morgan vaults throughout, and Prosecutor Cullitan quoted Van Sweringen as acknowledging that no money had changed hands.

Nutt, an old friend who gave banking aid to the Van Sweringen brothers when they first launched into a real estate career, defended the transaction.

SLUM-RAZING HEAD QUITS

Lee C. Sellars, who has been employed in the City Bureau of Sanitation as a laborer and has been directing the slum-razing campaign of the new administration, has resigned.

An ordinance creating a new position for him has been tabled in Council. Health Director Ray P. Moyer announced that he has accepted Sellars' resignation but hopes to be able to place him in another job to continue the work he has started in slum eradication.

More than 50 waivers have been obtained from owners allowing the city to take down old buildings. Some of the houses are already being taken down without charge by wrecking contractors who accept the material as payment.

Seven houses have already been taken down and seven more are in process of being razed.

Diary Depicts Lincoln Shooting, 69 Years Ago

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP.)—Sixty-nine years ago tonight Abraham Lincoln was assassinated in Ford's Theater, Washington. Among those in the audience was Dr. Charles Taft, who attended the martyred President until death, and his diary tells anew the story of that fateful night.

The notebook, which recently came into the possession of Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, Philadelphia Bibliophile, relates:

"At about 10:30 my attention was directed toward the President's box by the report of a pistol, and I saw a man jump from the stage box, shouting as he did so: 'Sic semper tyrannis!' As he struck the stage he partly fell, sinking down until his knees touched the floor. A few moments of great confusion followed.

"I heard several shouts for a surgeon; this was the first intimation I had that anyone had been wounded. I sprang upon the stage, calling out that I was a surgeon, when I was seized by several men and lifted up to the stage box. When I entered, the President was lying on the floor surrounded by a number of men who were trying to remove him."

Dr. Taft recounts in detail how the President was carried across the street to a private residence and how doctors sought to save his life.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AS HE ARRIVED HOME IN WASHINGTON .... CONGRESSMEN CHEERED, THE MARINE BAND PLAYED

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

Name Street City, State

If you wish to support this movement, please sign this petition at once. All names and addresses should be written VERY clearly. Mail today to Closed Bank Depositors Department, The Sun Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

(Additional names may be added by pasting a sheet of paper to this petition.)

KELLY IN MIDST OF PAYOFF BILL BATTLE

County's Congressmen Lead Fight to Force Floor Action

Allegheny County and Pennsylvania Congressmen had hung up an enviable record today in their fight to get favorable action on the McLeod bill, designed to pay off depositors in closed Federal Reserve banks.

Four Allegheny Congressmen, Clyde Kelly, Michael J. Muldowney, Matthew Dunn and Henry Ellenbogen, signed the petition to bring the pay-off bill out of the Banking and Currency Committee.

Kelly was a leader in rallying House members to the measure's support, his efforts finally resulting in the necessary 145 signatures for the petition. Muldowney drove all night through the snow to sign.

The fifth Allegheny Congressman, J. Twing Brooks, said he would be in Washington Monday to join his colleagues in their fight.

OVER HALF SIGN

More than half, 18, of Pennsylvania's 34 Congressmen signed the petition. They were Kelly, Muldowney, Brumm, Focht, Rich, Ditter, Dunn, Boland, Edmonds, Swick, Wolfenden, Strong, Turpin, Stokes, Kurtz, Ransley, Connolly and Ellenbogen.

Pennsylvanians reported in favor of the bill were Brooks, Waldron, Haines, Berlin, Crosby, Walter and, conditionally, Cochran and Snyder.

Appreciative of this paper's drive to draw the attention of the people and their representatives to the bill, Kelly yesterday wired the Sun-Telegraph:

"Heartiest congratulations on success as to petition on McLeod bill. One hundred and forty-five names today. Your efforts of great value. Feel sure final success will be ours."

SEVEN NON-COMMITTAL

Pennsylvania Congressmen who remained non-committal were Beck, Frey, Richardson, McFadden, Darrow, Doutrich and Faddis.

Ohio signers were Bolton, Sweeney, Truax, Young, Cooper, Feisinger, Jenkins and Secrest. Favoring the bill in that state were Fletcher and Kniffen, and, conditionally, Kloeb and Polk.

Non-committal were Hollister, Hess, Thom, Imhoff, Crosser, Marshall, Underwood, West. Against it, Harter and Lamneck.

Congressmen Randolph, Ramsay and Johnson, of West Virginia, signed. For the bill were Kee and Edmiston, and, conditionally, Smith.

STOKES BACKS M'LEOD BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Representative Edward L. Stokes, candidate for the Pennsylvania Republican gubernatorial nomination, late yesterday denied that the McLeod bank depositors' relief bill is inflationary. He said:

"That is absurd. The bill is to be financed by the RFC and has no other purpose than to free millions of dollars of deposits that cannot be released to the buying public in any other way.

"The proponents of the bill have no desire to embarrass the President. Their only intention is to release money that rightfully belongs to bank depositors and make available more than a billion dollars to American business."

Stokes was one of the House members who signed a petition to discharge the Banking and Currency Committee from further consideration of the bill.

Bank Payoff Backers Press Drive in House

McLeod Bill Pushed Over Opposition of Administration

Congress until relief is voted for closed bank depositors.

He pointed out the Glass-Steagall bill, which carried guarantee of bank deposits, was only put through Congress after more than 100 House members agreed to block adjournment until it was approved.

Representative Brown (Dem.), of Michigan, whose modified bill for relief of depositors was reported out by the House Banking Committee in an effort to nullify the McLeod petition, planned to reintroduce it with sections included which the Banking Committee struck out.

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Roosevelt has turned thumbs down on bank payoff legislation.

At his press conference yesterday the President left no doubt he is opposed to the McLeod bill and all other proposals for the use of federal funds to relieve depositors in closed banks.

Even if such legislation passes Congress, it was made plain it will be vetoed.

McLeod bill proponents, however, immediately announced they will redouble efforts to pass a bank relief measure as a major weapon in fighting depression.

The President treated the bank payoff plan in a light and joking vein.

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS

Asked for his opinion, the President inquired whether the sponsors of the legislation were including all bad debts as a government obligation. He pointed out that he lost $300 in a closed bank in 1921, his family lost money in the 1907 depression and his father's funds were caught in a closed bank in 1893, and asked whether these losses would be included in the payoff plan.

In the House yesterday, proponents continued their fight for consideration of the McLeod bill. Within five minutes after the House convened, four additional members had signed the petition designed to force a vote April 23. That brought the total to the requisite 145, but the effect had been nullified in advance by action of the Banking Committee at the command of the Democratic leadership in reporting an amended bill.

RULING SOUGHT

Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, the author, filed a resolution asking a rule from the Rules Committee for immediate consideration of the measure. If the committee fails to act within seven days, McLeod will file another petition to discharge the committee. If 145 names are secured, the vote on discharging the committee would come up May 14.

A round-robin pledging members not to vote for adjournment until the House acts on the McLeod bill was being circulated by Representative Dingell (Dem.), of Michigan.

Chairman Bankhead, of the Rules Committee, announcing a meeting would be held Tuesday or Wednesday, declared:

"I will take up the matter of the McLeod rule with the House leadership. The committee is interested in doing what the administration wants."

20 Garages Swept By Fire, Autos Saved

Fire late yesterday destroyed five of 20 garages owned by Dr. E. J. Meley, in the 600 block, Penn avenue, Turtle Creek. Household goods stored in one of the frame and sheet iron garages were damaged, but all automobiles were removed. Turtle Creek firemen estimated the damage at several hundred dollars.

OFFICERS 'LOSE' DILLINGER

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP.)—John Dillinger, America's No. 1 vanishing outlaw, has vanished again.

The "here today and gone tomorrow" criminal left a cold trail in Indiana, where he replenished his arms at the expense of the Warsaw (Ind.) police early Friday.

While fortune smiled on Dillinger, one of his girl friends, Miss Evelyn Frechette—like some of the other acquaintances of the notorious public enemy—was not so fortunate.

Shortly afterward deputy marshals raided a safety deposit box on the North Side, presumably to recover bonds and cash stolen by the Dillinger mob from banks in Mason City, Ia., and Sioux Falls, S. D.

A small amount of cash and some jewelry were found. The raid gave rise to a report, which was denied, that the Frechette girl had, in the language of the underworld, "squealed."

Child in France For Trade Study

PARIS, April 14.—(INS.)—Richard Washburn Child, special economic emissary of President Roosevelt, who is studying European conditions, arrived in France today for a survey of "trade obstacles."

MILLING CROWD MARS FUNERAL OF BABY

Kidnaped Girl's Rites Turned Into Circus By Curious

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP.)—A frenzied, clawing mob of 15,000 sensation-seekers converted a baby's funeral into a circus.

As 2-year-old Dorette Zietlow's body lay in its little white casket yesterday they shouted, pushed and fought, smashed police lines, threw the services into confusion, and snatched pink sweet peas from the casket.

Outside the chapel they climbed atop automobiles, toppled two chimneys from the roof of the mortuary and milled in the streets, defying 40 policemen.

Inside, they shouted, "Down in front," gossiped, chattered and giggled, until finally a legionnaire helping to conduct the funeral arose and shouted.

"This isn't a boxing match. It's a funeral."

The Rev. Henry A. Lambrecht, pastor of the St. Peter Evangelical Church, where Dorette, victim of a 13-year-old boy abductor, was in the infant's Sunday school class, reiterated his pleas for order. He pleaded:

"A large number of persons have come here today perhaps to satisfy curiosity. Except for those who can offer real help, the others would have helped best by being absent."

Dorette's mother, patient in a mental institution, was taken to the mortuary hours before the services. She kissed the hand of the child, who died of exposure in an attic, where the boy left her. She murmured:

"My baby is pretty."

THUG ALARMS RUBY KEELER

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Al Jolson, who is Ruby Keeler of the cinemas, was under treatment for nervous shock today following a burglar scare at the Jolson home.

The prowler entered the house while Miss Keeler and her mother were in an upstairs sitting room. He fled when the actress, hearing him, gave the alarm.

Police, arriving shortly afterward, found Miss Keeler hysterical from shock.

Her husband, the comedian, is in New York.

INSULL'S WIFE MAY JOIN HIM ON STEAMER

Magnate Guarded, Could Stop for Her On Mediterranean

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA AT SEA, April 14.—Samuel Insull, formally extradited and en route back to the United States from Turkey aboard this combination freighter and passenger vessel, may be joined by his wife on his trip across the Atlantic, it was learned today.

It was suggested that Mrs. Insull, understood to be in France now, might board the Exilona at one of the Mediterranean ports it will touch before passing through the Straits of Gibraltar and striking out across the ocean for Boston and New York.

Insull was placed under a constant guard today to prevent a possible suicide attempt on his month-long voyage.

Just before the Exilona sailed from Smyrna, Turkey, at 12:30 a. m. today, Turkish police, as their last official act, went through the 74-year-old man's luggage and confiscated all razors and other sharp instruments. Said Police Commissioner Nail Bey:

"I greatly regret to have to perform this painful task, but it is my duty."

Insull, standing by silently, nodded.

UNDER CONSTANT GUARD

Proceeding along the same lines, Burton Y. Berry, young third secretary of the American Embassy in Turkey, and Capt. Wenzel Habel, of the Exilona, announced Insull would not be left alone a single moment during the entire 5,000-mile journey. The two are jointly responsible for Insull's safety.

Berry stationed the ship's doctor, Dr. J. L. Bray, outside Insull's cabin for the first night, to maintain a constant watch over the man who several times in recent months has said he would "rather die" than face the accusers in the United States.

HEADS FOR SICILY

The Exilona steamed across the Aegean Sea today, later to enter the Mediterranean Sea proper and head for Catania, Sicily, her first stop, where she is due next Tuesday. She is scheduled to reach Boston about May 9 or 10 and New York a day later.

Capt. Habel waited until after midnight to set sail because he did not want to leave on Friday the 13th. Port regulations, barring any sailing during darkness, were waived to permit the Exilona to get away quickly.

MYSTERY PAIR SLAIN IN HOTEL

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP.)—Police tried today to identify the bodies of a man and woman whose expensive clothing and jewelry made a sharp contrast to the shabby hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

Because of the positions of the bodies and the fact that the woman was wearing her sealskin coat and a hat detectives theorized that the man shot and killed her as she attempted to leave their room and then turned his pistol on himself. Both were about 40.

That they were prominent, investigators felt certain. But they had only the name "Benson" on the man's coat and the registration, "Mr and Mrs. C. Barry, Oakview," to guide them. The names on the register were called fictitious.

The room clerk told police that the couple registered Thursday night and that yesterday afternoon he heard two reports which probably were the shots.

AKRON, O., April 14.—(AP.)—A private plane crashed near Hinckley, in Medina County, last night and early today two bodies, identified as those of Lester Krug, 26, and his young wife, were brought here.

Akron airport attendants believed the two were the only occupants of the ship, a three-place cabin plane.

Krug was a reserve officer in the Army Air Corps and a former lieutenant in the air service.

He had made a trip to Cleveland so that the plane's owner, W. B. Moore, of Canton, O., could take a train to Buffalo.

The plane struck the side of a sugar house as it crashed.

Ex-Safety Director Escapes as Two Cars Crash

Fourteen persons, including Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Jr., wife of the former Public Safety Director, were treated in Pittsburgh hospitals early today and last night for injuries received in automobile accidents.

Mrs. Denny suffered slight shock when an auto driven by her husband, according to police, collided with a car driven by Dennie Wilcox, 26, Negro, of 2633 Wylie avenue, at Baum boulevard and Enfield street, last night. She was taken to West Penn Hospital. Denny was uninjured. Police charged Wilcox with reckless driving.

Others treated were Jerome Porter, 22, 1929 Charles street; Grant Ross, 34, 1020 Beaver avenue; Alderman Robert W. Helfrey, 51, of 1719 Perrysville avenue, and Jack Barnes, 29, of 2121 Perrysville avenue.

Twenty-two stitches were required for Alderman Helfrey's injuries. His condition was fair. Two other passengers escaped injury.

Three schoolgirls were hurt when they were struck by a truck at Mansion and Hazelwood avenue late yesterday. Mary McFadden, 10, of 5327 Second avenue; Martha Mitchell, 9, of 20 Almeda street, and Helen Edmondson, 11, of 224 Mansion street, were treated for scalp injuries and bruises.

Robert Buchanan, 7, of 245 Melwood street, was injured last night when struck by an auto driven by Robert Thomas, 37, of 5424 Center avenue, at Baum boulevard and Enfield street, police said.

William Schubert, 19, of 5233 Wickliffe street, was seriously injured when he was knocked from the rear of a truck on which he was riding at Liberty avenue and Thirty-eighth street. Eugene McGrady, 30, 6902 Baker street, told police he did not know the lad was on the truck.

Canvass of Pittsburghers Shows Solid Support of McLeod Bank Payoff Measure

'Man in Street' Holds Financiers Must Justify Trust

With a legislative struggle promised in Washington to prevent adjournment of Congress until depositors of closed banks are assured relief legislation, a cross-section of Pittsburgh life voices unanimous support of the McLeod bill for 100 per cent payoff.

Under the bill of Representative McLeod, of Michigan, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would take over the remaining assets of closed banks that were members of the Federal Reserve System at the time of their closing. With funds advanced by the RFC, depositors of such banks would be paid in full.

The average "man in the street" or girl back of a counter or punching a typewriter, feels that it is fundamental justice that these depositors should be paid, as revealed in a symposium conducted by the Sun-Telegraph.

Carl F. Jacobs, salesman, of 2202 Center avenue:

"People certainly should be given back the money they entrusted to the banks. It's the only way to maintain the nation's confidence in its banks."

Miss Olive Lawry, stenographer, of Emsworth:

"It would be the natural thing to turn all these millions back into business channels by releasing these funds immediately. No one would suffer and thousands would benefit under the McLeod bill."

Paul R. McGrath, hotel clerk, of 301 Kingsboro street:

"If the McLeod bill passes, I'll spend the $200 I have in a closed bank. I'll get married and buy a car."

Miss Marion Fischer, stenographer, of 3117 Terrace street:

"It's a shame that thrifty people should be penalized for their thrift. Passage of the McLeod bill would restore their faith in the banks."

Alexander H. Singer, tobacco merchant, of 335 Coltart avenue:

"It's the easiest thing the government could do to turn that money back into circulation. I have money in two closed banks. I would spend it if I could get it."

Anthony Sylvester, delivery man, of 609 Sixth avenue:

"If people could get these millions through the McLeod bill, they would circulate it, create more jobs. Wages would go up, and everybody would be happy."

VOTE FRAUD DEFENDANTS FILE APPEALS TO SENTENCES

SCHEDULE NEXT TRIAL SERIES FOR MAY

Twenty-nine of the 37 men and women sentenced by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court for committing election vote frauds were released under $2,500 bonds each yesterday, pending appeals to the United States Circuit Court.

They were convicted at the special February term of court, making a total of 54 persons found guilty since the beginning of the election trials last November.

Among those who appealed from his conviction and sentence was John Stabile, former Republican chairman in the Eighth District, Third Ward, sentenced to serve one day in jail and fined $1.

MULDOWNEY APPEALS

Joseph W. Muldowney, judge of the Third District, Fourth Ward, election board, and brother of Congressman M. J. Muldowney, appealed from a one-year-and-one-day penitentiary sentence.

Four officials of Sixteenth District, Third Ward, election board, who did not appeal, were committed to jail to begin sentences.

They were Martin A. Kenavy and Walter Joyce, inspectors, sentenced to serve terms of one year and one day each in the penitentiary, and Thomas Monroe, Jr., and Leo L. Van Maele, clerks, each sentenced four months to jail.

MOTHERS SENTENCED

Nineteen defendants were sentenced to serve one year and one day each in the penitentiary, 14 to serve four months in jail each, two probations, one fined $500 and one one-day jail sentence. Mrs. Mary Wagner, mother of five children, who received a three years' probation sentence, is a candidate for the State Legislature. Mrs. Mary Burns, also mother of five children, who was erroneously reported as a candidate for the Legislature, was fined $500 and sentenced to serve one day in jail.

Mark Stanton, who served as a clerk on the Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward, election board, was placed upon probation, when the court was advised he was in poor health.

PLAN MORE TRIALS

With these cases disposed of the District Court, First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh and former United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, who was appointed a special government prosecutor, to be associated with Marsh in the remaining vote fraud prosecutions, will begin plans for the next series of trials at the May term of court.

Some of the cases are against prominent Republican leaders in Allegheny County, including State Senator James J. Coyne.

Reed Declared Aide of Mellon In NRA Fight

PHILADELPHIA, April 14 — (AP.) — United States Senator David A. Reed's opposition to efforts "to spend our way back to prosperity" are laid by former Judge Paul S. Lehman, chairman of the Pinchot-for-Senator state committee, to "his realization that the bill will have to be paid by the Mellons and other great interests which control the cash and credit of the country."

Saying Reed goes into the Republican primary in his campaign for renomination "without anything behind him but the Mellon millions," Lehman said the Senator "has proven to be Gov. Pinchot's best campaign speaker."

By votes in Congress he has alienated various groups, the Lewistown man said, adding:

The people generally are against him because of the appalling, cold-blooded attitude he has taken in regard to President Roosevelt's measures to help the vast army of the unemployed and bring back prosperity."

Attorney General William A. Schnader, candidate on the Republican ticket to succeed Pinchot as Governor, promised, in the event of his election, to see that "no man, woman or child in Pennsylvania is in want because of unemployment." He promised:

"Relief for the unemployed will take precedence over everything else. Our policy will be one of strict economy in the various branches of the state government, but everything in my power will be done to secure adequate relief and assistance for the destitute unemployed."

Schnader's address was broadcast.

UNION STUDIED BY MACARTNEY

Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, of the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, will discuss "Shall the Presbyterians and the United Presbyterians Unite?" at the 8 p. m. service tomorrow.

Committees representing the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. and the United Presbyterian Church of North America have been formulating a plan for the union of the two Presbyterian bodies. Recently a plan of union was adopted by the joint committee and this plan will be submitted to the two General Assemblies at their meetings this spring. If approved by them, the plan will then be submitted to the presbyteries of the respective churches.

The United Presbyterian Church was formed by the union of the Associate Synod and the General Synod of the Associate Reformed Church, in Pittsburgh on May 26, 1859. At the beginning of the Civil War the Presbyterian Church was divided by the secession of the presbyteries of the southern states. The schism has never been healed.

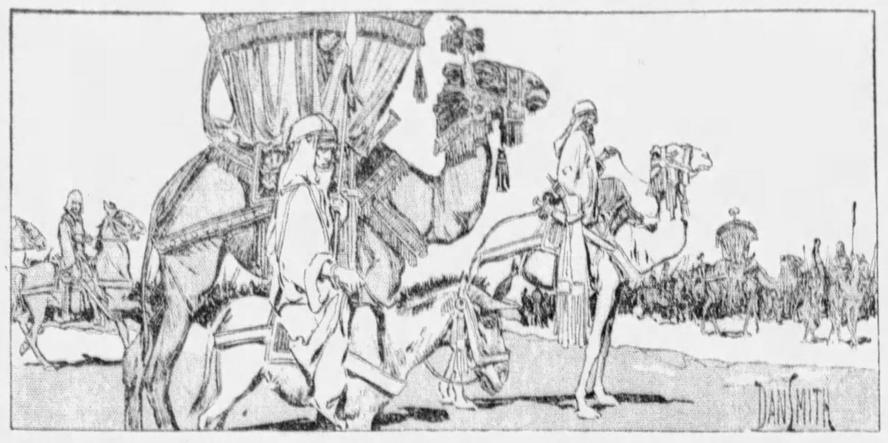
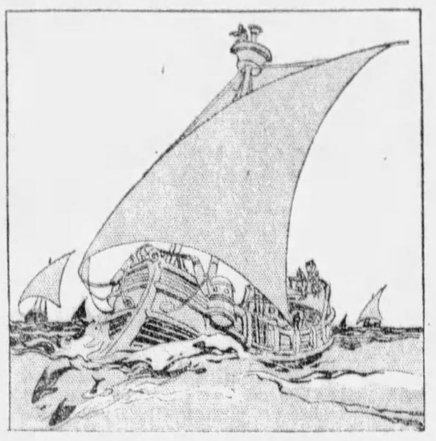
The Story of Solomon — CHAPTER V — Told in Pictures by Dan Smith



The fame of Solomon spread abroad as he ruled over srael, and the Queen of Sheba heard of his fame concerning the name of the Lord, and decided to go and prove him with hard questions. So she went up to Jerusalem with a very great train, and with camels that bore rich treasure of spices, also a great amount of gold and precious stones, as gifts to Solomon. For she wished to commune with him of all that was in her heart.

And when she saw how great was his wisdom, and learned of all he had built, the Queen of Sheba said to Solomon: "I believed not until I came and mine eyes had seen it; end, behold, the half was not told me."



Not only did the Queen of Sheba give him one hundred and twenty talents of gold, but the navy of Hiram also brought to Solomon gold from Ophir, besides a great quantity of almug trees, also harps and psalteries. (The End)

CHURCH MARKS FOUNDING 30 YEARS AGO

Tomorrow's 11 a. m. service at the First Unitarian Church, Morewood and Ellsworth avenues, will be an almost exact replica of the first service used in the church 30 years ago at the time of its dedication. On Tuesday, the actual date of the dedication in 1904, a congregational dinner will be served in the spirit of 30 years ago with young girls dressed in the clothes of that time acting as waitresses. The program after dinner includes the reading of greetings, a short history of the 30 years by Mrs. L. Walter Mason, the widow of Dr. Mason, for 30 years minister of the church, and speeches by Dr. Lupton and Dr. Carl August Voss.

U. S. CHAMBER VOTES STRONG DEFENSES

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—An adequate national defense has been demanded in a referendum vote by the membership of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Proposals approved by the membership asked that:

The United States continue support of the principle of limitation of armaments by agreement.

In agreements for limitation of naval armament the United States obtain assurance of a fleet adequate to protect our shores, our territories and possessions, and our foreign commerce to an extent equal to that enjoyed by any other power.

The United States maintain its fleet in relation to the fleets of other contracting powers at the ratio established in agreements for limitation of armament.

Within the terms of agreements for limitation of armaments the United States systematically program all naval construction and modernization.

The United States give continued support to the upbuilding and maintenance of an American-owned merchant marine suitable and adequate as a naval auxiliary in the event of war.

The United States maintain the principles of army organization embodied in the existing national defense laws, calling primarily for a small active military force to serve, with the National Guard and the organized reserves, as the nucleus of a large citizen army in case of emergency.

The United States undertake and maintain a systematic program for modernization of army equipment.

Within the terms of agreements for limitation of armaments, the United States pursue a systematic program of building and maintaining air services in the Army and in the Navy adequate to attain the objectives of the national defense laws.

TWELVE HERE TO GET ORCHIDS

"Winchell orchids" are again coming to the Pittsburgh district.

Twelve persons will be selected for some outstanding public or charitable service by their neighbors and friends, to receive Winchell orchids, named for the Sun-Telegraph's Broadway columnist who has made famous the phrase, "an orchid to you."

Arrangements were made yesterday by Ed Ludwig, district representative of the Florists Telegraph Delivey Association, and Mrs. Catherine Scheaff, chairman of the district group of the association. Local members will supply the orchids which will be delivered from April 17 to April 22, as an observance of National Flower Week which ends April 22.

Selection of orchid awards will be based on the accomplishment of some unusual service, just as were the awards made here last March.

If you know of some person whom you think deserving of such a token of public recognition, write you suggestion, with an explanation, to the Winchell Orchid Editor, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Church to Observe Fifth Anniversary

The fifth anniversary of the foundation of Holy Trinity Christian Church, Ambridge, will be celebrated tonight with a program of national songs sung by girls of the church choir. John D. Butkovich, president of the Croation Fraternal Union, will be the principal speaker.

Pittsburgh Pilot

JUNIOR PATROL

President Roosevelt has returned from his vacation, fellows!

He went fishing down south in the ocean, resting up after his hard work during the past few months. He has many cares, but he has met them all smiling and calm. That is a brave way to meet your troubles. Some people seem to woryy all the time.

And because they worry more troubles come to them. When a fellow is doing his best, and trying his hardest, he should quit worrying. A fellow doesn't get much done or help himself very much when he thinks what might happen.

* * *

Let's all keep trying to make the Junior Patrol Club bigger and better, fellows. Junior and his pals are back from Little America now, and they are going to have some swell new adventures.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Signed .....

Date of Birth ..... Address .....

School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Here's hoping that everyone safely got over Friday, the thirteenth. I know that I didn't have to worry about Mrs. R., who writes that her husband was born on Friday, April 13, 34 years ago. Aside from that all her thirteens have been lucky.

She was married on Friday, the thirteenth, 13 years ago next May. Her birthday is June 13. She and her husband bought their home on November 13 and no matter where she goes, 13 always crops up and means luck.

I'm expecting to hear that she inherited a fortune yesterday.

* * *

Is there no stop to this? The Globe Trotter is getting to be the original menagerie man. So far he has handled items about lost dogs, cats, canaries, goats, pigeons, ponies and parrots. Today it is a white rabbit that has been lost. It has been found, too. Its owner can have it by going over to Mrs. R. W. Getz, 221 Dan drive, Mt. Lebanon.

* * *

Mrs. Mattern—Will you try the Carnegie Library reference room again? I'm sure that they have the information you are seeking.

* * *

The robins are maintaining their reputations as battling birds. Reports have trickled in from 4314 and 4316 Murray avenue, the homes of R. J. Wholley and C. K. Winnett, that one of the redbreast family is going after windows in vicious fury. This has been going on since last Sunday, and the dwellers of the houses want to know why.

The reason many give for these window pane attacks is that the robin sees his reflection and either admires the reflected bird so that he wants to strike up an acquaintance or hates the looks of the bird so much that he can't refrain from taking a sock at him.

Do Listeners Dance to Radio?

By AIRCASTER

Things that controversies grow out of are always to be found in the missives dragged in by the faithful postman.

A nice, up-and-at-'em fight, with a little promotion, might be developed from the views mailed in by Vincent Lopez.

Vincent, whose fame is based largely on his trick arrangements of popular tunes, believes that a vast majority of the radio audience actually dances to radio music, and this theory prompts him to keep his arrangements adapted to human footwork.

The job of arranging is twice as difficult when the music is designed for terpsichore.

On the other hand, Ben Pollack, who also tricks up arrangements, believes that most radio fans loaf and listen, play bridge and eat, etc., and that therefore the arranger should be at liberty to ignore the footwork and put all the classical frills he chooses on the current ditties.

It is the theory of patrons of commercial shows, however, that there are certain nights when dancing is in vogue, and others when the loaf and listen routine dominates.

STAR MAKER

Whether by coincidence or design, half a dozen of the customers forward the same question:

"Will you name, who, in your opinion, holds the most important job in the field of radio entertainment?"

Quite a query! But if I were naming a person who holds one of the most important jobs, I would name Madge Tucker, who bands all those kids together for "The Lady Next Door" programs.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair

One of the most attractive events in the whole year at Thurston School for Girls is its annual play, usually a costume affair presented in Arnold School.

This year the play will be Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," to be presented Friday night in the gymnasium of the Arnold School.

There is always a host of patrons for this attractive affair. Among those for the production this year are Mrs. Henry Vaughan Blaxter, Mrs. Earl Blough, Mrs. Arthur E. Braun, Mrs. John G. Buchanan, Mrs. Albert P. Burchfield, Mrs. R. C. Cooper, Mrs. George S. Ebbert and Mrs. W. Eugene Gary.

Affiliated Groups Report Variety of Activities At Congress of Clubs

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

An astounding variety of work was reported by 46 clubs at "affiliated club day" in the Congress of Clubs yesterday—the one day in the year on which the clubs in the Congress talk about themselves and their achievements. These activities included such contrasting things as quilt-making and the making of 4,800 gauze sponges, payment of gas, electric, water and coal bills for needy families, donations of toys to institutions and families, compiling a history of the community, purchasing hospital supplies, and eye glasses, placing memorial tablets, raising scholarships, distribution of 4,900 gallons of milk (this was the Lawrenceville Neighborhood House), making carpet rags, veteran and unemployment relief and even selling stock for the reopening of a bank. And there was no end of institutional work included in the imposing list.

These reports took up the morning hour, then after luncheon came a panel discussion on the relationship between the Congress and its affiliates and the place they both occupy in the civic life of the district. Much ground was covered and many problems were talked over and threshed out and, amid much laughter, solutions arrived at. These touched on the service of the Congress to the club, faults that interfere, what may be expected from both sides, closer co-operation and what determines the policies of the Congress.

Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, of the Congress, led the discussion and others speaking were Mrs. L. P. Forman, of the Oakmont Woman's Club; Mrs. E. P. Schempp, Rosslyn Farms Woman's Club; Mrs. A. L. Fillmore, Outlook Alliance, and Mrs. William M. Stieren, Jr., American Legion Auxiliary.

Elsie Breese Mitchell, music chairman, presented Miss Helen P. Bigge, who sang, with Mrs. W. W. Duecker at the piano.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I don't know what the President caught, but that Senate just by howling "Yea" caught five hundred million, that will bear a second reading, 500,000,000 extra out of a gentleman called "old man taxpayer." They were just about to put on their hats to go home when they happened to think of the last 116 million. The way they got it now when you get all through with your taxes, you add an extra 10 per cent. That's the "cover charge," but they can't do all these things they are doing without paying for 'em, as high-priced as it is to live in, I don't see anybody leaving the country. Yours, WILL.

GOWNS FOR PLATFORM APPEARANCES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WOMEN'S CLUBS all over the country are putting on their spring entertainments, with spring entertainments, with many a Mme. President making apt speeches before the curtain goes up. The two gowns sketched here were selected as excellent models for wear at such functions; they have a picturesque, dignified quality, and they are nicely balanced between the dinner costume and the very formal toilette.

Both lend themselves to the ubiquitous cluster of orchids; both have a train of histrionic beauty; and after the debut of each, they will fit painlessly into the regular wardrobe. Moreover, either the younger or the more mature matron will find them becoming.

For the flowered frock, sandals that pick up the blue or the pink in the fabric are suggested for slippers. Satin slippers dyed to match the blue of the other frock, and daringly provided with scarlet heels, would be a good choice.

The flaring Elizabethan cape and the bouffant train of this gown are unusually picturesque. The material is old-fashioned shot taffeta in smoke gray and blue with pink flowers.

Navy blue net, a comer for evening, is used for this white-dotted formal gown. Blue taffeta and a fan of the stiffened net finishes the very low back. The nosegay is of field flowers.

Scores More Joining Ranks Of Entries

Thousands of men, women and pupils in the tri-state district are busily engaged today in writing America's epic in 600 words for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota.

Hundreds of others are inquiring for details governing the invitation to every American to write the nation's progress through nine episodes of its glorious history for consideration as the final inscription upon this great American monument.

And there still is time for thousands more to join the millions throughout the country who seek not alone the cash and scholarship awards but the honor of being that American whose impression of what the nation has accomplished will be the selection of the national committee of awards of which President Roosevelt is chairman.

The nation-wide competition is being conducted by the Sun-Telegraph and associated newspapers. Every person is invited to participate. Complete rules, awards and details will be outlined in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. Read them, study them and clip them out for reference. Then begin writing your text. Write it from the heart, not in flowery phrases, but in plain and simple English. Some persons will write the one that will exist a million years carved in the granite mountainside. It may be you.

HARVARD MEN PLAN REVOLT

BOSTON, April 14.—(AP.)—The Herald says more than 100 Harvard freshman will quit the famous new Harvard houses next year in a revolt against too much democracy and expense.

Complaining that the house plan, the purpose of which is to make each house a cross-section of the entire student body, forces them to live in the same buildings with men of different creeds, political opinions and social positions, the students plan to hire houses of their own next fall, the paper says.

The revolutionary movement is led by graduates of exclusive preparatory schools, the Herald says, and groups of 15 or 20 men plan to leave Kirkland, Adams, Dunster and Winthrop houses.

Things Tough If You Can't Save By Living in a Tree

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

That three-cent tax on coconut oil must have been thought up by the brains trust.

It's going to make the monkeys sore. Things are pretty tough if you can't save money living in a tree.

It's a victory for Tugwell, Wallace and Richberg. Only a brain truster could think up a way of taxing our ancestors.

We'll tax some Washington coconuts soon as we find out what's in 'em.

The college boys on the White House campus ought to go better if they can get over the idea that the ship of state is an eight-oared shell.

But they're doing pretty good in politics for first-year men. Any student will go great if you let him mark his own papers.

How did the professors get to Washington? Why, they went down on a school teachers excursion and stayed there.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS :-:

Trade Commission, Congress Tilt Over Stocks

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The trouble with this administration is it has no romance.

There can be no doubt about that in view of what has happened on the inside to cause this current congressional flurry against the securities act.

Names cannot be used, and figures must be slightly disguised, in order to tell the whole truth in print, but the facts are guaranteed. They center around a crowd of red blooded, adventurous oil prospectors, the kind who can drill a hole in your pocket even if you wear iron trousers.

These boys prospected the safety deposit boxes and old socks around the country and decided there was too much hoarding.

They agreed to remedy the situation by selling some stock at 35 cents on the dollar, not as a business proposition, of course, but just because in the spring a prospector's fancy always turns to thoughts of selling stock.

POETRY

The proposition was placed before the Federal Trade Commission. The prospectors pointed out that the company was capitalized for $800,000, meaning 800,000 shares of stock at $1 par value.

Just as when knighthood was in flower, the big nature lovers were going to let the public in, not on the ground floor, but two basements below, at 35 cents a share.

Of all the New Dealers, the Federal Trade Commissioners are the least romantic. They have the sentimentalism of a faro dealer playing for the house. They began to ask questions which led some of the commissioners to understand that the oil property behind this $800,000 venture originally had been bought for $4,000.

The commissioners were in doubt as to the actual present value of the property, but at least one of them figured it at no more than $20,000. The company contended the property had a book value of around a half million.

An $800,000 stock issue on a $20,000 property requires considerable romantic faith, and it soon became evident to the promoters that the commissioners had no poetry in their souls.

FIGHT

An adjournment of the hearing was asked, and the romanticists dashed up to Congress, where sentimentalism usually is rampant in an election year such as this. There they found sympathy, and understanding.

Certain Congressmen, whom they interested in the subject, called a meeting. Some of the Federal Trade Commissioners were invited to attend. One did. The others declined.

At that meeting, it was agreed that the Congressmen and the commissioners could never agree on how much imagination there should be in capital stock. One Congressman bluntly said as much and accused the commissioners of being phlegmatic materialists.

That started the fight which has been going on ever since.

PROSPECTS

Those who know say there will be an amendment to the securities act modifying the liabilities section. But no two will agree on the wording of a specific amendment.

The liberals who wrote the act are strongly against repealing the clause entirely. They do not mind exempting corporation officials who make excusable mistakes in filing statements with the commission. But they are dead set against weakening the act by repealing the whole section. They want to make culpable corporation officials liable for misstatements.

That is not as easy as it sounds. The whole theory of the act is at stake in the wording of the amendment.

YAWN

Those who attended that Wirt party out in Virginia say it was the dullest rag-chewing session the Parlor Pinks have ever held.

The week before, the same crowd had a fine time because there were no Wirts present and they had a chance to get in a word of their own. Present on that occasion was a diplomatic representative of a foreign country whose face turns crimson even now, with the thought of what would have happened had a Wirt been present then and dragged his name to the front pages.

Dr. Wirt really did not get into the best revolution circles here. You can get a more thrilling conversation in the parlors of any number of homes here every night.

Oil Men's Scheme To End 'Hoarding' Kicks Back

However, there is no chance for him to get an invitation now.

MISUNDERSTOOD

The way the Mugwumps, young Anthony Advocates, Brain Trusters, et al, look at it, they are being deeply maligned. They say privately that they are the real upholders of the capitalistic system and point to the stock market bill and securities act as proof.

Those two bills are founded on perpetuating the capitalistic and profits basis by sympathetic reform.

NOTES

Some rich men are putting a portion of their wealth into small bulk collectors' objects, such as stamps, rare books, etc. These have an international value the same as gold. A group of businessmen from the Far West report that during their Washington visit recently their hotel rooms were entered and their personal papers inspected. It must have been an isolated incident, because hotel managers say they have received very few such complaints.

One plan suggested to President Roosevelt by a topmost adviser is that he respond to business protests by announcing complete abandonment of the NRA and RFC. The idea is that business could raise a tremendous howl and give the President respite from further criticism. Bankers now are in better standing around the White House. Their association has been cooperating, in the opinion of White House judges.

STOCK MARKET PRICES TILT UPWARD

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—The early price trend of stocks tilted a bit upward today although trading was slow. Recent active specialties were dull. Motors were narrow.

Ligget & Myers B and Du Pont rose major fractions. Slighter gains were shown by United States Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Kennecott, United States Smelting, Bethlehem and Loew's. Sante Fe and General Motors were steady. Warner Brothers and Packard were rather active in the low-priced field.

Most banking circles were not surprised at the decision of the Treasury to call 1,200 million dollars additional Liberty bonds for redemption on October 15. It was expected that some sort of a conversion offer would be made to holders of the new called series similar to the recent 3¼ per cent Treasury issue.

The response to the exchange proposal, involving the retirement on April 15, of 1,005 million dollares of Liberties and $244,234,000 of notes maturing in May was characterized as distinctly successful. Of these totals some 797 million dollars of Liberties and 234 million dollars in notes were turned in for the new 3¼ per cent bonds. The Treasury, of course, will pay about 218 million dollars in cash to those who failed to take advantage of the conversion plan.

The British pound, in early dealings, recovered ¼ of a cent at $5.15½, and the French franc was slightly higher at 6.60 cents.

GROUP TO SCAN UAF SETUP

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Five stockholders of the United Aircraft and Transit Corporation, forming a stockholders' protective committee, announced they intend to supervise the proposed reorganization of the company.

The reorganization was suggested by officers as a result of the government's proposed new air mail policy, which requires a change in the character of existing carriers. The committee said:

"It is not, however, our purpose to interfere with or oppose the management, provided the proposed reorganization is bona fide and, under close scrutiny, merits our approval."

The committee comprises George Brokaw Compton, Martin C. Ansorge, George Gordon Battle, Alexander Hamilton and F. William Zelcer.

COTTON HOLDS STEADY

NEW YORK, April 14.—Cotton futures opened steady, 1 to 3 points lower, with liquidation meeting trade and spot house buying. May, 11.83; July, 11.94; October, 12.07; December, 12.16; January, 12.23; March, 12.32.

Comparatively light offerings were readily absorbed by trade demand and the market ruled fairly steady during the first half hour.

RATE OF STEEL CONSUMPTION GAINING

By B. E. V. LUTY

According to the weekly forecasts of the American Iron and Steel Institute, production of steel ingots after four weeks of slow but almost continuous decline has suddenly turned upward and regained all of the lost ground except three-tenths of one point, production this week being set at 47.4 per cent of capacity. Except for the slight excess five weeks ago this is the highest rate since last summer. There was a higher rate from late June to late August, but that was not typical of actual ultimate consumption because there was stocking of steel and manufactures of steel in anticipation of higher prices and costs. Later there was liquidation with correspondingly light production. Actual consumption is at the highest rate since the spring of 1931.

The downturn in steel buying was commonly attributed to introduction of the Wagner bill in the Senate on March 1, while the recent upturn is by the same token ascribed to belief that the bill will not pass or will be greatly modified.

Buying has been increasing all along the line and the price advances now being made may be partly responsible, but this was scarcely a factor in the upturn in production, so little time having elapsed.

Prices on pig iron, semi-finished steel and the majority of steel products advance at various dates next week, in accordance with filings already made with the institute. Thus far the chief activity caused by price changes is the making of contracts for delivery through June 30, the last date for which shipments can be made on any sales or contracts made prior to June 1.

"STOCKING" PROSPECTS

An interesting question in this connection is the extent to which buyers will "speculate," the convenient term used by the trade to designate the accumulation of stocks in anticipation of consumption. In plates and shapes little stocking is possible because sizes that may be needed are not known. Then it is possible that some buyers will not feel certain that prices are going to hold indefinitely. Finally, there is the matter of financing purchases. It is thought the automobile industry, which apparently can always find money, will stock heavily sufficient to cover a large part of the remaining production of 1934 models.

Another point is how the stocking will be distributed. Mills intend to insist as far as possible on the stipulation in all contracts requiring "approximately equal monthly deliveries," but cannot prevent their customers from taking some leeway.

As a result of these uncertainties, no definite prediction as to the rate of steel production in the next few months can be made. Indications are clear that actual ultimate consumption will be such as to cause a rate of fully 50 per cent in the remainder of the quarter. Stocking, or speculating, will make an addition to the rate, but the addition cannot be estimated nor whether it will be spread out or concentrated in a few weeks.

PEAK RATE AHEAD

Unless something unforeseen occurs June will be the heaviest month in shipments, but May might be the heavier month in ingot production. Whatever stocking there is will adversely affect July and August.

While orders for railroad steel have not been coming in as fast as expected there has been an upward trend and production for railroad use is in fair volume, involving chiefly track material and steel for building and repairing rolling stock. Rail production has been light so far, deliveries under the Eastman program being permissable through August. Three-fourths or more of the 845,000 tons in the original plan will be taken.

The automobile industry is taking more steel, as its operations are increasing. Production of cars and trucks, United States and Canada, in the first three months of this year was 167,910, 243,947 and 345,156 respectfully and April is expected to exceed 400,000.

Valley pig iron prices will advance one dollar a ton on all grades on April 17.

TREASURY CALLS BOND SERIES

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—A policy of orthodox financing is indicated, observers believed today, by the administration's latest move to cut interest charges on the huge public debt.

With the approval of President Roosevelt and the cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau called $1,200,000,000 worth of Fourth Liberty bonds for redemption next October 15.

It was noted the announcement read that between now and October 15, bondholders may be offered a chance to swap their securities for other "interest-bearing obligations." This lent support to a forecast of a continuation of orthodox financing. The Thomas inflation amendment would allow the President to issue non-interest bearing money to retire the public debt.

In selecting bonds to be called, Morgenthau made the choice by lot. He picked from a glass jar a paper cylinder which named for redemption bonds with serial numbers ending in the digits 8 or 2.

Things I Can Do Without

Colds . . . Autos that look like they're going when they're coming . . . Doctors who just say "Hmm" . . . Drug stores that don't sell stamps . . . People who occupy phone booths longer than five minutes . . . Interviewers who put wordage in your mouth you didn't say and couldn't possibly utter . . . People who ask you to play benefits and when you say you wish you could but you have endless hours and that you once got sick because you took on too much routine—they say: "Oh, you're getting high-hat, eh?" . . . People who once did you dirty, who think you forget easily and years later urge you to help them out of trouble.

People who predicted last September that there'd be a revolution in six months . . . Little dogs with sweaters . . . False beards . . . Delicatessen store owners who keep rubbing their hands together . . . Humidity . . . Guys who say: "Why not have lunch with me sometime?" . . . Appointments with anybody . . . People you hardly know who want letters of recommendation.

Small minds in big jobs . . . College boys on the loose . . . College boys not on the loose . . . College boys . . . Comedy sequences where the husband says: "I won't go to the dance and that's final!" and the next scene shows him dancing . . . Imitations of Jimmy Durante . . . So many of them are so badly done . . . Durante's liable to suffer . . . Soda jerkers who call themselves bartenders . . . People who call you up when you're out and refuse to leave their names.

The smell of hospitals . . . Wisecracks from the wits on the sidewalk when you limp toward a gas station with a flat tire (not you, honey) . . . Movie contests . . . List of The Ten Best This or Thats . . . The critics of Gordon and Revel, the song-writers who clicked big—the critics who kept saying: "After all those writeups they'll certainly have to live up to them" so what happened? So they wrote: "Ja Ever See A Dream Walking?" and now the "We're Not Dressing" score which contains "She Reminds Me Of You" and five other tuneful ditties . . . Stunt pictures of fighters in training . . . Sandwiches named after celebrities.

Po' white trash novels packed with sex, suh . . . Wet paint . . . Tea-room coffee . . . Super-salesmen, super-service stations; super-movie productions . . . Old autos with five high school kids in the front seat . . . Buttered hair on fatheads . . . Gum on theater seats . . . That scene in the cinemas where the crook babbles out a lengthy speech and the detective hits him over the dome and sneers: "So you won't talk, eh?"

Interesting stories that end: "Continued next week" . . . People, who knew you "when" but forget that they didn't give you a tumble then . . . Bread pudding . . . Mexican pottery . . . People, especially night club messers of ceremonies, who ape Harry Richman, who doesn't even imitate himself anymore . . . Sandwiches that are mostly lettuce . . . Very pointed toe shoes for men . . . People who urge you to send word to officials when a friend of theirs (not yours) breaks some law, and you oblige—only to be embarrassed by publicity seeking officials, who call in the local reporters and proudly point to your plea and say: "I want the papers to know I can't be influenced!" . . . Your only satisfaction is knowing that you did try to help someone in distress.

The clown who always puts on the ladies' hats at parties—funny mans . . . Barbers who eat onions and garlic, particularly those who, after eating them, get confidential when they gab . . . People who get you to let them use your name on a committee—and then when it's too late you learn they use it to get actors to do you a favor—because when you're a dramatic critic you can't do actors favors and be a critic.

Showers where the water suddenly turns ice cold . . . Drunks who tell you how much they stick up for you when somebody pans you . . . Sober people ditto . . . Waiters who bring you that salty juice for your chow mein when you distinctly say: "Don't bring me that stuff, bring me woostersheer sauce" . . . People who quarrel with you over something they say you printed when somebody else printed it . . . Aggrieved people who threaten to go to your boss about you . . . Children who've been taught to say "Why don't'cha cummup 'n see me simtime!"

People who want to tell you things "for your own good" . . . Persons who know you dislike them who go out of their way to be sugary to you . . . Press agents who send you quips and sayings attributed to their clients that you published years ago . . . And when you return them and say they are old—they are published elsewhere, which is all right with you . . . People who sharpen knives until you could scream . . . Speakers who come unprepared and proceed anyway . . . Second-raters who try to play "Rapsody In Blue" . . . Men who tell you they are positively done with certain women, but bore you stiff gabbing about them, anyhow . . . Readers who don't enclose stamps but ask you for a poem that was about "love" printed last May or "maybe it was January."

Stale rolls . . . Waiters who leave one thin slice of butter instead of three . . . Girls who get goofy after two highballs . . . Strangers who happen to discover your home address and send their mail to you there instead of to your office and then wonder why they never get an answer . . . Callers who will stay "only two minutes," but don't . . . Male movie actors who get cunning . . . Movie actresses who get interviews and their picture in the paper by saying that Doug and Mary "should kiss and make up because everybody wants them to!" . . . When Doug and Mary probably wish people would stop making them do things they don't want to do . . . Men who sing sad songs (except "Red" McKenzie, that is) . . . Women with sour shapes who wear tight frocks.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 14—Hello! Once a soldier, always a soldier. Victor McLaglen, who has been a soldier since he was 14 years old, is now colonel of the California Light Horse. In organizing this cavalry outfit of lancers, which now comprises some 60 picked troopers, McLaglen is fostering and encouraging military horsemanship and equestrian sports. He now has the only fully equipped troop of lancers in the country. They include Americans, British, Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders.

Victor and his brother, Cyril, who is a lieutenant, enthusiastically drill every week to keep themselves in splendid physical trim. And Vic has just leased a portion of the Breakfast Club as a meeting and training place for one year.

Men in White, Buddy Rogers In Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

"Men in White," the year's greatest dramatic success on Broadway, turns up in the Penn this week in a film adaptation and an excellent job it proves to be.

The picture sticks closely to Sidney Kingsley's exciting play of hospital life. It is sensitively and sensibly directed by Richard Boleslavsky.

And it is splendidly cast with Clark Gable as the young interne; Jean Hersholt in the fat part of the great Dr. Hochberg; Myrna Loy as Gable's society girl fiancee and beautiful Elizabeth Allan as the nurse who complicates the plot so tragically.

The minor roles are many and well filled. Otto Kruger deserves mention for a fine bit, and the Little Colonel of long ago, Henry B. Walthall, helps with the atmosphere.

"Men in White," as you no doubt know, concerns itself with the conflict between duty and love in the life of Dr. Gable. He has been chosen to work with an outstanding surgeon, with the expectation of carving for himself a great career in medicine. He is also engaged to wealthy Miss Loy, who becomes increasingly impatient with the constant demands made on his time by the hospital.

After a terrifically hard day and a quarrel with Miss Loy, Gable forgets himself with Nurse Allan. The climax is reached in an amazing scene in the operating room, with Gable and his master trying to save Miss Allan's life while Miss Loy looks on.

Struggle and death and intense drama follow as the plot moves to a conclusion which, while unhappy, is logical and inevitable.

Throughout there are glimpses behind-the-scenes in a big hospital. The internes, the nurses, the patients, all provide their moments of drama, their tugs at the heart, their moments of humorous relief. They make a complete, well-rounded background for the moving story of two doctors and two girls.

The acting is beyond reproach, and Boleslavsky surpasses himself in the operating room sequences and in the mystically beautiful death scene of Miss Allan.

On the Penn stage we find Buddy ("Charles") Rogers and his band, the California Cavaliers, in a consistently sprightly and amusing show.

Buddy doesn't look a day older than when he was here with the late Florenz Ziegfeld's last show, and the crowd who turned out to see him enjoyed every minute of his performance. Buddy acts as master of ceremonies, leads his band, sings after a fashion, and plays every instrument in the orchestra, in the pleasantest way.

The band imitates its rival bands in one uproarious number, counterfeiting Cab Calloway with plenty of hi-de-ho and Guy Lombardo down to the last sour note. Of the individual members who did specialties, Jack Paul Douglas seems to captivate the audiences most with his comedy.

Dixie Dunbar, who can only be described as a cute little trick, sings and dances, and Jean Goodner helps Buddy with a novelty number.

Zasu Singer In Davis

By MARGARET GARRAHAN

Zasu Pitts, helplessly singing a song, and Aline MacMahon, the McKeesport gal, starring in a rather different film, serve to make this week's double bill in the Davis and Regent theaters a bargain full.

Zasu's song—and what a song!—started something in Hollywood, apparently. The powers that have been handed us in "Sing and Like It" both an entertaining comedy and an A-1 cast.

The voice of Zasu in a "mother song" drifts o'er the evening breezes to the ears of a nattily-dressed gentleman, Nat Pendleton, busily engaged on a safe-cracking job. He listens, memories rise, tears trickle. He decides to put the voice on Broadway—and you guess what happens! Pert Kelton is cast as Pendleton's girl-friend; Edward Everett Horton, as the White Ways greatest producer, and Ned Sparks, of the doleful countenance, as the gangster chief's principal accomplice, "Toots."

"Heat Lightning," Miss MacMahon's starring vehicle, is the story of a lady with a past who with her sister, establishes a filling station in a desert in an effort to live honestly. Two fleeing bandits step into the scene. One, it develops, is a ghost from the past she's trying to forget, and things begin to happen.

Glenda Farrell and Ruth Donnelly, as two divorcees fresh from Reno, with Frank McHugh, as their chauffeur, provide very adequate comedy relief. Preston Foster and Lyle Talbot are the fugitives. Most effective scenically, are some camera shots of the desert sky at night.

Gilda Gray Is Coming For Benefit Show

Gilda Gray, noted dancer, will be among the entertainers in the extensive bill to be given at the Variety Club's benefit show in the Penn Sunday night. Ed Lowry will be master of ceremonies and other performers will include the Hilton Sisters, Siamese Twins; Peter Higgins, singer; Peggy Bernier, personality girl; Billy Aaronson, radio artist; Don Zelaya, pianist; Darling Twins, dancers; Bernie Armstrong, organist; Joe and Jane McKenna, song and dance team; Melano & Davis, comedy team; Lois Miller, and others. There also will be a feature photoplay. Tickets are on sale at downtown and neighborhood theaters. Harry Kalmine is general chairman of the affair.

Moving Film In Warner

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"As the Earth Turns," excellent photoplay in the Warner, is a rural drama, perhaps the truest and closest to the soil of any in the past. It gives us folks of the country as they are today, and they may be a surprise to those who still have a mental picture of the hayseed type of farmer that was so thoroughly impressed on us in "The Old Homestead," and who was only slightly more real in "Way Down East." So the nice thing about "As the Earth Turns" is its truth, simplicity and human quality. It is based on Gladys Hasty Carroll's novel.

The theme of the story is the fact that in some persons there is instinctive love for the call of the soil while in others, even those born on it, there is a feeling of strong dislike and evident unfitness for it. Thus we have a city-born boy, with unusual musical ability, attracted to the farm with its hardships, while farm-bred youngsters yearn for the city.

The action is laid in a farming community in Maine, into which moves a family from the city—a Polish tailor and his brood—to a run-down place bought by his son, who earned the money with his violin. Their lives and those of their neighbors, as affected by the seasons, make a deeply impressive picture, dramatic, romantic and moving, as the Polish boy and a Yankee girl are attracted to each other through attachment to the soil.

Jean Muir, as a drudging girl who portrays the nobility of work, giving a vital characterization, and Donald Wood, refreshingly earnest as the young musician-farmer, head the cast. David Landeau, William Janney, Dorothy Peterson and Emily Lowry also are prominent.

Fun at Op'ry In Pitt

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Might as well leave your sour face at home when you get out for the Pitt this week, for Charles Withers with his "Behind the Scenes at the Opry House" is bound to get you guffing sooner or later. It's silly, this act of his, there's absolutely no sense to it but what matters that since it's crazy enough to take the kinks out of your funny bone.

Lightning, thunder, rain and snow are all manufactured before your very eyes. Romance villains have their trials in melodramatic excerpts of stage misfortune. A brass band parades through the audience. Something happens every minute.

"Broadway to Hicksville" the show is called. "Broadway," as might be expected, goes in for elaborate scenes and costumes, lively dancing, hotcha singing by Muriel Gardiner, amusing melodic back-and-forths by Helen Patterson and Frank Dobson, and a much-applauded sentimental round of hits by Cameron and Lee.

Doing their part in keeping the laughs going, Billy and Elsa Newell team their comedy to good effect. And when Elsa does go it alone for an "A La Helen Morgan" she gives the house a generous, if not comely, leg show.

It is not until the show gets to "Hicksville," though, that Charles Withers and his endless contraptions come seriously, if you could call it that, into the show.

Claire Trevor on the screen presents that very hard-boiled, go-getting (so they picture her) creature, a female reporter, who in "Hold That Girl" gets what she wants and manages to make James Dunn appear smarter than the usual movie detective.

Broadway Beauty a Suicide

MISS MAZIE SMITH, one of Broadway's most beautiful showgirls a few years back, leaped to her death the other morning from the twelfth floor of the Hotel Walastor. She will be buried in the small Ohio town in which she was born, May I present you with a few reactions? . . .

* * *

THE ROOM CLERK—The minute she asked for a room, I could have sworn she was going to do something like that. A fellow in my line of work gets to know a lot about people, you know. Oh sure, I've had eight suicides check in on me since I've been a clerk, and I've never missed calling the turn on one of them.

Trouble is, none of these hotels know how to run their business. Now, if they'd only make me the president . . .

* * *

A BROADWAY COLUMNIST—So Mazie Smith is gone, eh? Well, that's life. That's Broadway. That's the way it goes. That's Broadway. That's life. That's life. That's Broadway.

A nice kid, that Mazie. I was pretty decent to her, though, and it does seem that she might have left me a suicide note. The readers go for that type of stuff in a big way.

But she didn't do it, and that ends that. Oh, well, what else can you expect on Broadway? No gratitude. No appreciation. That's life. That's Broadway. That's Broadway. That's life.

* * *

A MAN AT THE BAR—If I'd married her when she wanted me to, things would've all been different. But, hell, that wash two years ago. What's a use of me blaming myself for something happened two years ago? I'm gonna forget all 'bout it, that'sh what I'm gonna do. It wasn't my fault and it all happened two years ago, I'm gonna forget it.

Hey, Joe, gimme 'nother drink. I got something I wanna forget. Something very beautiful—two years ago . . .

* * *

A REPORTER—Nothing much left on that Smith suicide story, boss. The old man blew town today with the body, and all the other angles are washed up.

No, there wasn't anybody at the station. Okay, boss. I'll knock out about 250 words along "Broadway - Forgets - Dead-Beauty" lines, and let it go at that.

What's that? Why, sure, I know just what you want, boss. Haven't I written 50 pieces for you just like it?...

* * *

EIGHT MEN—I was very lucky. Very. The papers never found out that I was the man she really loved. . .

A PAWN TICKET—She could have sold me for five bucks. She almost did a couple of times. But she never went through with it. I guess maybe the ring meant a lot to her, and she didn't want to give up her last claim on it.

So now she didn't get the five bucks—and somebody else will get the ring anyhow. Funny the way things go in my business. . .

* * *

HER FATHER—I don't understand. All her letters were so cheerful-like, and she said she was doin' so well in New York. She had her pictures in the papers all the time, and she always said she was right happy.

And now she's up in the baggage car, and I'm bringin' her home to bury her. Sometimes I think I must be dreamin'. I don't understand. . .

Players Are Going On And Up

By GEORGE SEIBEL

While the past week has been a prolific and interesting one in Little Theater activities, the coming week also holds high promises. Better and better work is being done by these groups—the Masquers out at Calvary Parish House gave as smooth and well balanced a performance of a mystery melodrama, "In Times Square," as could be desired. George M. Rowland's direction and Howard Blaine's playing of the juvenile lead were specially commendable. At the same time two new scripts of considerable merit had a tryout in the Experimental Theater in Aiken avenue—which must have been gratifying to the authors—Kilburne Blaisdell and Sarah C. Pettit. And the Stage and Play Society revived that grand old nautical and domestic drama by Douglas Jerrold, "Black-Eyed Susan," under direction of Theodore Viehman, in the Twentieth Century Club.

Mr. Seibel

Next week begins Sunday night, when the Newman Players will put on "Master Pierre Patelin," the anonymous old English farce written about 1464, a hundred years before Shakespeare's birth. Madeleine Skelly Foust will direct, and Roy Henry will play Pierre. Performances will also be given Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Monday will witness the opening of "Henry the Fourth," second part, in the Little Theater of Carnegie Tech. Franklin Heller will be the Falstaff, after having approved himself a good one in the first part.

Then the Epworthian Players present Jerome K. Jerome's "Passing of the Third Floor Back" in the Nixon Tuesday evening, with settings copied from the original production by Forbes-Robertson.

The boys of St. John the Baptist parish will put on a musical history of that parish on Tuesday evening in the Catholic High School Auditorium, 4720 Fifth avenue. They are rehearsing a melodrama of ancient vintage and a new play by George Kaufmann, whose "Prom Night" won the Drama League prize last year.

The last half of the week will be given to gayety and frolics at the Nixon as the Cap and Gown Club of Pitt University will stage "Hello Again," this year's musical comedy in 30 scenes. Written by students and played by students, these annual revues always excite interest through their new lyrics and the new lingerie displayed by the gentle laddies, not ladies.

Hepburn Star In Stanley Drama

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Spitfire," new Katharine Hepburn starring vehicle in the Stanley, is a story of a mountain girl, rough one minute and gentle the next, which is easily believeable. Not quite so readily swallowed is the thematic idea that, while she is typically hilly-billy in most respects, she is almost too intelligent and philosophic for environment. Despite the evident artificiality of the story, "Spitfire" remains something to see because of the character portrait given by Miss Hepburn. Her control of the moods of "Trigger" Hicks gives wide latitude in acting ability, and the star-touched Miss Hepburn makes the most of the opportunity.

"Trigger," lives alone in a shack built by her pappy, who is no more. Her neighbors respect her throwing arm, which can hurl stones with uncanny accuracy, and they keep away from her as much as possible. She can use unlady-like epithets as freely as a man, but knows more about the Bible than anyone around. Furthermore she believes, and when she isn't swearing or casting stones she is praying.

Truly a strange type of girl, the brain child of Lulu Vollmer, author of "Sun-Up," and if there be doubts of her reality, it cannot be charged to Miss Hepburn, whose picture is perfect.

The drama hinges on the fact that she steals a baby that is sick and nurses it to health, after which it is restored to its parents. When it dies she is accused of witchcraft, those blaming her including a woman who had recovered after "Trigger" had prayed for her. She promises to go away when a mob storm her home.

Her romantic interest is smothered when a young engineer who makes love to her has a visitor—his wife, Robert Young is the deceiver.

But there is left in the minds of the audience the probability that she will return, for Ralph Bellamy, purchaser of her cabin, has told her that he will wait for her a year—and she doesn't throw a rock at him for saying it.

Main squad of the Pittsburgh Pirates assembled at the Pennsylvania Station this morning upon their arrival home after a flock of one-day stops on their return from the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp. The trip from Terre Haute to Pittsburgh for an exhibition game with the Washington Senators at Forbes Field this afternoon was for naught, as the weatherman turned on the sprinklers and provided a frigid setting to prevent the contest.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Contrast in Cronin Roles
Old Failure Now Standout
Pilot Sees Second Flag

Rowe Called Speed King
Blunder Starts Rugby
Ailing Boxer Spurns Help

Seven years ago, the Pittsburgh baseball club sent young Joe Cronin away as hopeless, a disappointing rookie having no chance ever to make good in the major leagues. The Pirates were not alone in passing that judgment. Fifteen other clubs in the big show joined in the verdict, passing up the youngster as a permanent failure rather than claim him at the wavier price. Today Cronin came back to Pittsburgh as the manager and the outstanding playing star of a champion ball club, the youngest pilot in the major leagues, one of the few ever to win a pennant in his first managerial season, and the most valuable shortstop in the country. That's how much anybody can tell about baseball futures.

Joe Cronin

Joe retains all the baseball enthusiasm of his boyish Pirate days, but still is as modest as he was when a struggling and failing rookie. He thinks his Senators again will win the pennant in the American League, but he isn't making any boastful claims in that direction—only that they are as good as in 1933 and look to him like the best club in the race. Cronin believes he has the strongest pitching staff in the junior circuit. Crowder, Whitehill and Stewart won 61 games last year, Weaver is expected to regain his form of 1932, Thomas and Burke are improved, Russell is one of the best relief men in the game, and Prim, Linke and McColl are strong reinforcements.

Manush, the leading hitter of the Nats last year, apparently is headed for another big season, the young manager thinks; Stone, the only new regular, is figured to be at least as good as Goslin, whom he replaces; Kuhel has become one of the star first sackers of the league, and the remainder of the lineup is held to be of pennant caliber, both offensively and defensively, with the hitting of Bluege improved by the wearing of spectacles while at bat. Cronin's old local friends trust that Joe has the right dope on his club, and hope that when the Senators make their next visit to Pittsburgh it will be to meet the Pirates in the World Series.

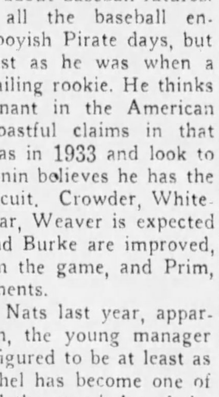
FERRELL'S PAY CLOSE TO $50 PER INNING

Seeking to justify the stand of the Cleveland club in the present holdout of Pitcher Wesley Ferrell by showing that the latter has been one of the best paid hurlers in baseball, President Alva Bradley produces some figures revealing that Ferrell has received an average of almost $50 for each inning pitched in the service of the Indians. Ferrell has won 102 games and lost 62 for Cleveland, and for this Bradley says Wes has been paid $64,954.76, an average of $636.75 for each victory. The pitcher has hurled a total of 1,322 innings, or $49.13 per inning.

Ferrell, the last remaining holdout of the spring, still refuses to sign the bonus contract on which the Cleveland club insists for 1934. This provides for a salary of $5,000 plus, the bonus offered for each victory making it possible for him to earn close to $11,000 if he turns in 20 triumphs. The pitcher demands a straight salary of $12,000.

ROWE RATED AMERICAN'S FASTEST HURLER

There have been many debates as to whether the distinction of being the fastest pitcher in the American League belonged to Lefty Grove or Lefty Gomez, with some claims being made for George Earnshaw. According to Mickey Cochrane, all of those arguments may now be dropped. He asserts he has found in Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe a hurler with greater speed than any of the others mentioned, and insists the young Tiger flinger must be ranked as throwing a swifter ball than any rival slabman in the Harridge circuit.



Lynwood Rowe

Three weeks ago Rowe was on the point of being sent home to rest his ailing arm for a year, but the wing suddenly rounded into form, and Cochrane predicts that if it does not go wrong again Schoolboy will be one of the sensations of the season. Mickey himself went behind the bat in a practice game to handle Rowe's delivery and says the youngster's speed amazed him. In three innings Rowe retired the first eight men to face him and only two balls were hit out of the infield. When he kept his fast ball low it was unhittable.

AL SIMMONS IMPRESSED BY CORSAIRS

By AL SIMMONS

Star Slugger and Outfielder of the Chicago White Sox

Editor's Note—As the Pirates and White Sox said farewell tonight, Al Simmons wrote his impressions of the Pirates and their flag chances exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 14.—We have just ended one of the best spring exhibition tours in which it has been my pleasure to participate. I refer especially to the trip from Pasadena to Terre Haute, during which time we visited many cities.

Al Simmons

I have been asked about the Pirates and what I think they will do in the coming National League race which I know holds the keen interest to the fans of Pittsburgh.

AL BOOSTS VAUGHAN

First of all, and very important, the Bucs have a good combination around second base, a good catcher and a good center-fielder. It is my opinion that the Pirates are well fortified in all these positions. They have the best shortstop in the National League and one second only the the great Cronin.

That boy Vaughan has impressed me plenty. I think he is in for a great season and I wouldn't be surprised to see him fighting for the league batting championship. He hit the best we've been able to give him.

In Lavagetto, the Pirates have the best looking infield prospect I have seen in many a year; he's a great fielder and a fine hitter, particularly in the pinches. He'll do unless the National League pitchers find a weakness that we've been unable to discover.

Speed is essential in a prospective pennant winner, especially when you lack long distance hitters like the Cubs, Giants and Braves possess. I have never seen so many speed merchants on one team as the Pirates boast. Suhr, Vaughan, both Waners, Lindstrom and Lavagetto are on the alert at all times and we outfielders of the opposing nine had to be on our toes continually or these fellows were likely to take extra bases.

PLAY GOOD BASEBALL

The Pirates, through the long series just closed, played good baseball and used good strategy. It is my humble opinion they will be right up there all season.

The pitching of the Pirates has been a bit spotty, but of course that's excusable. It is early in the year and most of the hurlers have not reached top shape.

The parks we have played in had a lot to do with some of the big scores; fielders did not get near balls that would be ducksoup on our own diamonds.

Of course, that great lefthander of the Pirates, Larry French, looks best. He's in for a great season. Bill Swift looks mighty good and Hal Smith is O. K. Red Lucas gave a good exhibition the time he faced us, and with Red in shape the Pirates are all set in that most important department—pitching.

The fans know very well what Grace can do; he has looked exceptionally good. Earl's hitting is much better and Grace has capable substitutes in Hal Finney and Art Veltman.

Yes, sir, you Pittsburgh fans, I think you are in for some mighty fine baseball this season, and I wouldn't like anything better than to see these two clubs meet again—in a world series.

What do you say, fans of Pittsburgh?

INTER-LEAGUE CLASH HERE RAINED OUT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

A steady drizzle, which at times turned into snow, today deprived local baseball fans from getting their first glimpse of the 1934 edition of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates arrived home from Terre Haute, Ind., early this morning all set to tangle with the Washington Senators, American League champions, in an exhibition game at Forbes Field, but the weather conditions forced a cancellation of the contest.

As a result of the cancellation, the Pirates again will board the rattlers tonight when they head for Louisville to meet the American Association club of that city in their final exhibition game of the spring season tomorrow afternoon. Part of the squad, in charge of Scout Bill Hinchman, already is in Louisville, having gone to that city direct from Terre Haute.

LAST GAME TOMORROW

The contest with Louisville will be the last one for the Bucs before they open their National League season in St. Louis Tuesday afternoon. The Pirates will spend Monday in St. Louis and are scheduled to hold a workout in Sportsman's Park, the home of the Cardinals.

The fans were all set to make today's contest with the Senators a sort of home-coming for Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington club, who broke into the big leagues as a member of the Pirates in 1925.

Cookie Lavagetto, the kid second sacker of the Buccos, appears to have clinched the second base post for opening day as the Pirates brought to a close their long barnstorming trip with the White Sox at Terre Haute yesterday. The 19-year-old Italian had a wonderful day at the plate, his drives being of such a nature as to cause the kid to be the talk of the Bucco veterans on the return jaunt to Pittsburgh.

PADDEN'S HIT WINS

Tommy Padden's third hit of the afternoon scored Lavagetto to give the Pirates a 3-to-2 victory over the White Sox in the last game of the series. The Buccos thus made it nine victories in the 14 fights with the American Leaguers.

The hitting performance of Lavagetto which caused all the

PINEHURST NET FINAL TODAY

PINEHURST, N. C., April 14.—(AP.)—Frank Shields, of New York, and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., brushed aside stubborn opposition from Bryant Grant, of Atlanta, and George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, and will meet today for the North and South tennis championship.

Shields, top-ranked player of the country and seeded first for the tournament yesterday, whipped the little Atlantan who eliminated him from this tournament last year, in straight sets, but was forced to play at the top of his game. The scores were 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

Allison, the second ranking player, overcame Lott 5-7, 9-7, 6-0, 6-1. Starting out with a rush, Lott ran up a lead of 5-3 in the first set, but Allison fought his way back to even terms at 5-5 before Lott could win the set. The Chicagoan had set point four times in the tenth game. After losing the drawn-out, 16-game second set, Lott appeared to play indifferently and Allison went on to win easily.

FINAL SOCCER FRAYS SET

Two final soccer games will be staged tomorrow afternoon at Greenlee Field. The first game will find Avella and Houston meeting in a replay for the West Penn Junior title. This battle is scheduled to get under way at 2 o'clock. The second tilt, featuring Heidelberg and Gallatin, will be the first of a three-game series for the West Penn open title.

An attempt will be made to play both games to a finish. Many fans thought that Avella had the game last Sunday in the bag until a brilliant run and shot by McFalls spilled the beans and gave Houston another crack at the crown.

LENORE KIGHT WINS IN A. A. U. 220-YARD TITLE SWIM

LOCAL QUARTET BEATEN IN RELAY RACE

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP.)—The tussle for individual honors in the women's national A. A. U. indoor swimming championships hit the stretch today with the "Miami Minnow," Katherine Rawls, out in front by two points and a pair of mermaids from Homestead, Pa., and Seattle, Wash., right behind her.

Lenore Kight, of Homestead, who surprised the swimming world last summer by racing away with four free style titles in the outdoor championship, and Olive McKean, of Seattle, were the two contending rivals in the drive that probably won't be decided until the final event of the four-day and night battle.

MISS KIGHT VICTOR

Miss Rawls, a star of stars in women's big-time swimming at the age of 16, won two championships, each good for five points, in the 300-yard individual medley and low-board diving. Miss Kight finished second to Miss McKean in the 100-yard free style by a "fish's fin" and revenged the defeat by decisively defeating the Seattle girl in the 220-yard free style last night.

Spectators who have witnessed a veritable orgy of record-smashing since the championship meet opened, two world records being bettered by Jack Medica, University of Washington sophomore, in special events, figured there wouldn't even be a race in the concluding event, the 150-yard back stroke. Eleanor Holm Jarrett, of New York and Hollywood, was an overwhelming favorite to retain her title in that class. Last night, Mrs. Jarrett swam the back stroke for the Womens Swimming Association of New York in the 300-yard medley relay, and was clocked in world record time of 1:08.4. Her performance, unofficial as it was, gave the New York team an advantage that sent it sailing to victory in the event.

LOCAL TEAM TRAILS

The Carnegie Library Club, Homestead, Pa., finished second, 15 yards behind the New Yorkers, with the Washington A. C., Seattle, third.

Medica, who bettered the world mark Thursday night in the 400 meters, broke Johnny Weissmuller's world mark in the 250-yard free style last night, making the distance in 2:35, two seconds faster than swimmer-actors' time.

PANTHERS MOVE TRACK CLINIC INDOORS

By JESS CARVER

Coach Carl Olson, head track and field mentor at Pitt, who is doing his level, nay, heaping tablespoon best, to make this city track and field conscious, and the Panther varsity squad are hosts today to more than 50 high school track coaches and their teams at the university's first annual track and field clinic.

Because of exceedingly inclement weather, the forenoon half of the program, made up largely of instructive addresses, was moved from the Stadium, where it was scheduled, indoors into the Stadium basketball pavilion. The annual handicap meet for varsity and freshmen athletes is scheduled for this afternoon.

OLSON OPENS CONCLAVE

Coach Olson delivered the first address, "Conditioning Track Athletes." This was followed by a talk by Dr. Herman Groth, of the Board of Education, entitled "Automatic Timing of Track Events." Coach Olson then spoke on "The Start, from the Standpoint of the Athlete, Coach and the Officials." This lecture was followed by one on "Coaching of the Weight Throwers," by Coach Jock Sutherland, Pitt's football mentor, who was one of the best weight men the university ever turned out. James Potts, assistant track coach, gave a few pointers on "Coaching of High Jumpers and Various Methods of Baton Passing." Jimmy Hagan, graduate manager of athletics, gave instructions on the proper way to announce, and C. L. Walsh, of the Board of Education, talked on the proper methods of judging.

C. A. Nethaway brought the morning program to a close with a talk on the organization and conduct of metropolitan grade school meets.

HANDICAPS SET

At the meet in the afternoon, the handicaps have been so arranged that every contestant will have an equal chance of turning in a victory. The handicaps range in distance from two inches to 240 yards.

The following high school coaches were present:

ELKS BOWLERS IN TOURNEY

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Eight Pittsburgh district teams will compete in the seventh annual Elks' national tenpin tournament in Cleveland tonight and tomorrow. The tourney opened March 24 and closes tomorrow.

The Iron City team, made up of W. E. Bisler, Walter Yeager, Val Meyer, L. Yeager and Lehner, and four teams from North Side Lodge No. 339, is leaving this afternoon by train, while the Homestead teams will make the journey in automobiles. Two teams from Wheeling, W. Va., also are entered.

The No. 2 crew boasts such stars as Rider and Semler, of the Fort Pitt team, and Martin, Weber and Art Ober, manager of the Iron City team and secretary of the Pittsburgh Bowling Association.

Peter Hornick, John Verona, T. Burns, Meder, James Hernon, of Sharpsburg, and John Buck, of Tarentum, are the old-timers who will roll on the Nos. 3 and 4 teams.

Andy Haky equalled Ed Renkey's 862 score in the "Best Bowler" tournament at the Strand alleys last night. The pair now are tied for the lead. Other scores follow:

Ed Rapp, 720; W. A. Renne, 669; Jake Easley, 569; Steve Krysalka, 519; B. Metzler, 589; Joe Bodnar, 724; J. Galinis, 751; F. Metzler, 599; John Krysalka, 756; Ed Burns, 726.

Strikes and Spares

Five shutouts were scored in the Squirrel Hill Community Duckpin League, while the Realty team was able to win one of three games from the Barbers. Carsons, Colonials, Fort Black, Plasterers and Kaceys blanked Lebonians, New Deal, Langes, Ambassadors and Jolts. S. Belal tops the league with a 173 average. Frank Pollock and G. Small are tied for second place with 170. Pollock holds the high single game tally, 278, and Lou Golvash has scored 683 in three games.

The Roxian Junior House Duckpin League closed its season last night with the Roxian team the champion.

A. M. A. DOUBLES COURT FINALE ON TODAY

By PAUL SULLIVAN

Frank Koubek and J. Parker Smith, youthful and capable downtowners, will strive to uphold the standard of the K. A. C. this afternoon in a battle with Lou Alman and Frank Altmar, crack Y. M. H. A. combination, for title honors of the annual Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., senior doubles handball title tournament on the gallery court of the Keystone Athletic Club. The joust is slated for 2:30 o'clock and will terminate a fortnight of championship glove contesting at the Keystone Club.

Koubek and Smith, flashing bits of the keenest form they have exhibited in their rather brief competitive careers, yesterday upset Dave Olbum and Sam Gladstone, Bellefield stars, 21-19, 21-17, in a hot semi-final engagement. Olbum and Gladstone, who had sprung a surprise by eliminating Theos Manos and Curtis Clark, the defending premeirs, in the bracket of eight, were unable to get started properly in the face of the severe hitting of the triumphant pair.

YOUNGSTERS SMOOTH

Mixing fast, low ones with high stragglers that were particularly tantalizing to the impatient Olbum, the youngsters functioned smoothly both as individuals and as a team. If the Keystoners can come through their difficult assignment today, the success will mark return of district dual laurels to the Smith household, where brother Frank, now a local radio official, once stored 'em yearly as perennial partner of the slashing Manos.

Alman and Altmar were given plenty of scare by the dark horse Keystone A. C. array of M. P. Hinnebusch and Bob Clark. The Y. M. H. A. outfit, a coalition of a right-hander with a southpaw, proved somewhat vulnerable down the center, a weakness of which Hinnebusch frequently took advantage. The Keystoners pulled up from 9-18 to 18-all, then led at 19-18 ere succumbing in game one, while the second canto was a similar story of gallant rallies ending in futility.

P. A. A. PLAY CLOSES

Meanwhile at the P. A. A. the swan song of the intra-mural squash racquets and handball title tourneys is about to be sung. In the racquet affair, Frank McClintock will take on Dr. Dave O'Loughlin in the wind-up tomorrow. McClintock yesterday eliminated the writer, 16-14, 15-9, 15-10, in the semi-finals. O'Loughlin having passed through the penultimate stage at the expense of Dr. Whitey Stegeman several days earlier.

In the handball milling, Champion Harry Kraeling, Jr., awaits the outcome of the upper frame melee between Al Bialas and Vin McGuinness. Kraeling spilled Bill Kern, City Class B premier, by the unexpected margin of 21-17, 21-15 in torrid semi-final skirmish.

FAMOUS RING STAR DEAD

LOS ANGELES, April 14 (AP.)—A broken, white-haired Negro, Aaron L. Brown by name, died in a hospital here a week ago of natural causes.

Yesterday when friends sought donations to save the body from potter's field, his identity was learned. He was the Dixie Kid, welterweight champion of the world from 1904 to 1908.

Until six months ago the stoop-shouldered 51-year-old veteran of more than 100 ring battles from 1899 to 1914 was a prominent figure around fistic training camps of Los Angeles, gold-headed cane in hand and a gold-gloved stickpin in a necktie worse for the wear.

His earnings from 15 years of fighting long since gone, the Dixie Kid lived on what odd jobs he could pick up and on what his friends gave him. Then, one morning his body was found under an open window of a cheap rooming house. Police said he had tried to commit suicide. He survived to walk the streets again.

At the age of 21 he met Joe Walcott, then recognized as the world welterweight champion, at San Francisco in a bout which was awarded to the Dixie Kid on a foul in the twentieth round. That was April 30, 1904. He was generally recognized as the champion until 1908, when Mike Twin Sullivan defeated Jimmy Gardner in a 25-round bout in Los Angeles to claim the crown.

Shortly after 1910 he sailed for Europe, and his battles there made him an idol. An indication of his popularity in France was shown by the fact that while a referee awarded one fight a 20-round bout to his opponent Willie Lewis, a jury of French sportsmen reversed the decision. This was in 1911.

It was in that year that he knocked out Georges Carpentier in five rounds, the same Carpentier who met Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship in 1921.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—San Atcheson, of Memphis, the defending champion, and Angelo Trulio, of New York, moved into the final round of the National A. A. U. four-wall handball championship last night with surprising ease.

Atcheson waged through John Wack, of New York, 21-11, 21-4, 21-6, while Trulio disposed of Gomez Scott, of Baltimore, 21-8, 21-7, 21-6. Atcheson was much the ... Wack, but some part of the decisiveness of Trulio's victory could be attributed to the fact that Nelson played with a severely injured leg that badly handicapped him.

SPORTS COMMENT

reason of the games being played by the visiting Cambridge team, had its origin 111 years ago in the mental lapse of a young man playing association football, now called soccer. Until that time, football was solely a kicking game, as its name implies. William Ellis was a student at Rugby, and one of its stars at soccer. One afternoon in 1823, he became excited during an inter-class game, and finding that he could not kick a ball that was taking peculiar bounds, he scooped it up, tucked it under his arm and ran with it across the enemy goal line.

The score, of course, was not allowed. The leader of Ellis' team was so mortified at the flagrant violation of the rules that he offered an abject apology to the captain of the opposing club. Ellis was all out of luck with his mates for his "unsportsmanlike conduct." In a short time, however, the players began to debate as to whether or not the rules should be changed to permit running with the ball. Eventually, non-scholastic teams agreed among themselves to permit a player to run with the ball as well as to kick it. They called their changed game "Rugby," and in time the altered sport was adopted by the colleges and schools. American football is the outgrowth of Rugby after half a century of tinkering with the rules. Rugby has not permitted the Ellis deed to be forgotten. At the school today there is a small stone monument on which is inscribed:

"This stone commemorates the exploit of William Webb Ellis, who, with a fine disregard for the rules of football as played in his time, first took the ball in his arms and ran with it, thus originating the distinctive feature of the Rugby game. A. D. 1823."

STRICKEN FIGHTER REFUSES AID OF FRIENDS

Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffiths, not so long ago a prospective contender for the heavyweight championship, has been added to the long list of victims threatened with blindness due to ring injuries, but he declines to accept financial assistance from sympathetic friends. He plans to go into business, but wants to do it unaided. At the age of 27, Griffiths is all through fighting, suffering from an eye affliction common to his craft. He is almost broke, but does not intend to become a charge of his friends, for he still retains some of the self-sureness that made him a dangerous foe for any of the other heavyweights of his time.

Tuffy Griffiths

When Tuffy decided to go into business, somebody suggested a liquor establishment, but the retired fighter flatly refused. Another proposed a gas station, and again Griffiths shook his head. Well, what would he like to have? Tuffy finally revealed that his heart's desire was a haberdashery, whereupon friends in his home town of Sioux City, Ia., offered to collect enough money to give him a start. Griffiths refused, however. He had a little money, he said, and his credit would be good for the remainder of the essentials to the opening of a haberdashery. He wished to make good on his own money, not on that of his friends.

Browns Give Gray Gate After Row

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—(INS.)—Friday the thirteenth proved an unlucky day for Sam Gray, the thirteenth member of the St. Louis pitching staff.

Gray, it was announced by Manager Rogers Hornsby, has been unconditionally released. He was suspended Thursday by Hornsby on charges of insubordination, and at a conference between Hornsby and L. C. Mc-Evoy, vice president of the Browns, it was decided to give Gray his release.

A few hours later he signed with Milwaukee of the American Association.

Sistersville High Signs New Coach

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—Floyd Schwartzwalder, assistant athletic coach at Weston High School, Weston, has been named head football and basketball coach at Sistersville High for next year.

He succeeds Bill Metzger, who resigned March 1 to enter business at Wenona, Ill.

Schwartzwalder attended Huntington High School and last June was graduated from West Virginia University, where, in addition to being an honor student, he played center on the football team and captained the wrestling squad.

SUMMIT LINKS OPEN TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

Despite the inclement weather, a number of district golf clubs have announced sweepstake competition for today and one club, the Summit Club, at Uniontown, will stage its formal opening.

The South Hills Country Club is holding an open-house for new members, with golf in the afternoon and boxing bouts and other forms of entertainment this evening. The club boasts the largest membership in its history this year.

Highland Club members will use the regular greens today.

The United States Golf Association has announced qualifying rounds for the thirteenth annual public links championship, which will be played over the South Park links beginning July 30, are to be held in the first two weeks in July.

Each city is allowed five players. They shall be determined in a local medal play competition of not less than 36 holes. The U. S. G. A. has authorized its local representatives, if they elect, to select the players from the lowest 20 gross scores, and may also select for the team, without qualification, any player who qualified in the championship the previous year.

RAIN PREVENTS BUC-NAT GAME

buzzing in the Pirate camp is not reflected in the box score. In his first trip to the barrier, Cookie was robbed by Dykes who turned in a one-hand catch of a blazing liner. Dykes smothered a terrific blast to spoil another hit in the boy's next attempt. Cookie smacked a triple that led to the winning run in his third effort.

In the eighth round, the Latin boy cleared the bleachers with a drive that would have gone over almost any fence in the big leagues, but a ground rule held him to a double. Lavagetto has batted safely in 17 games.

PAUL HITS HOMER

Ralph Birkofer and Hal Smith held the Sox to nine hits. Ted Lyons worked against the Buccos.

Paul Waner gave 2,000 cold weather fans something to discuss when he smacked a homer over the right field wall. The natives say Paul's drive was only the third to clear the wall.

Washington Crew Beats California

SEATTLE, April 14.—(AP.)—The racing crews of Washington and California were ready today to defend western honors in the national intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16, following their mighty battle here yesterday when the northern Huskies retained their Pacific Coast rowing championship by the narrow margin of a quarter-boat length.

As expected, California won the three-mile junior-varsity contest, but it was by the unlooked-for margin of nine lengths. Washington surprised the Southerners by trimming the Bear freshmen by 4½ lengths in the two-mile spurt.

The Huskies won the blue ribbon in 16 minutes 33.2 seconds.

SENATOR FANS SEE PENNANT

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Baseball fans in the national capital, virtually recovered from the world series humiliation of last October, are confident Washington will win the American League pennant again this year if the Senators' "elderly" pitching staff performs like it did in 1933.

The bleacher bugs here view the 1934 scramble as depending largely on whether the veteran regulars of Young Joe Cronin's corps of moundsmen will be able to stand off the onslaughts of "old age" advancing steadily upon four of them.

Earl Whitehill and Alphonse Thomas are 34 years old, while Alvin Crowder and Walter (Lefty) Stewart are 33. Then, there is the methuselah of the staff, Alex McColl, who came up to the big league last year at the age of 39 after 20 years in the minors and who now is fighting for a place as a regular hurler.

Thomas, who started his professional career in 1918, had a sore arm last year and made a 50-50 showing but the three other "old men" who served as regulars displayed no symptoms of decrepitude. Whitehill won 22 and lost 8 games for a percentage of .733, second in the league only to the great Robert Moses Grove who won 24 and lost 8.

Crowder was somewhat lower in the percentage column, winning 24 and losing 15, but he was "the iron man" of his circuit, toiling in 52 games and willing to work almost every day if Cronin would let him. He weakened toward the end of his strenuous season and was not up to top form for the World Series.

Revolver Shooters Win Over Archers

The Pittsburgh Revolver League completed its schedule last night with the Pittsburgh Police Department team ringing up its twenty-second consecutive victory. The police were not defeated during the season.

In a special match, the Steel City team defeated the Pittsburgh Archery Club in a revolver-archery match, 1,381 to 1,200. Coulter and Eshelman lead the revolver shots with scores of 282 and 281, respectively. E. Hill Turnock, of the archers, had a score of 267. The scores:

Steel City
Norton	91	87	93	271
Coulter	95	92	96	283
Nunes	86	98	94	278
Eshelman	96	91	94	281
Fell	88	90	91	269—1,381
Archers Club
W. L. Reed	78	73	71	222
R. Wilhelm	75	76	86	247
R. L. Findles	83	78	85	246
E. Hill Turnock	88	95	84	267
E. H. Branten	69	69	80	218—1,200

CLAIMS CUE RECORD

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Marcel Camp, of Detroit, set what was claimed as a world record for snooker billiards in a tournament here yesterday and no registered claim to the contrary could be discovered. Camp defeated William Croll, of New York, 125 to 0, in eight innings and made a high run of 75. He based his record claim on the latter accomplishment.

TOPPING WINS GOLF TITLE

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—Two down and only three to go, Dan R. Topping, of Greenwich, Conn., staged a brilliant recovery to defeat Robert Lester, of West Orange, N. J., at the thirty-seventh hole of their final round match for the fourteenth annual Mason and Dixon amateur golf tournament yesterday.

As Topping hooked his drive into the rough from the thirty-fourth tee and Lester's split the fairway, it looked like the Greenwich competitor was whipped. But he uncorked a fine iron to the green while Lester's approach was short and the Jerseyman needed three more to get down. Topping sank his second putt to win the hole.

At the thirty-fifth, a fine drive and an equally good brassie took Topping on the green in two and he won the 525-yard hole with a birdie four to square the match.

Topping had a six-foot putt for a win on the thirty-sixth, but missed it and the hole was halved in threes, but at the first extra hole, Lester pulled his second into a trap while Topping was 15 feet from the pin. Lester failed to get out with his third and he took a five while Topping took a four to win hole, match and title.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Boys Anxious to Meet Her But Soon Drift Away

Fellows shun her. After the once-over. And why? That is Thank You's problem.

Why doesn't she have a STEADY beau.

Other girls DO.

Getting down in the dumps, and not being very pleasant, at times. That is the outcome. So Thank You says.

Necks at times, too. And modern enough.

Deary me! You are up against it. And here goes:

Dear Miss Brunot:

I'm another of your girls wanting your advice in the Speak Up, Sisters, Column. I an 23 years of age and can't find out what's wrong with me. Hope you will be able to help.

I can say I am very attractive and I can meet all sorts of people. Both girls and boys. But it seems I don't have a friend at all after talking with them once or twice!

Then they begin shunning me, all of them.

WANTS TO RUN AWAY

When I meet a fellow, he stops me and talks, and sometimes I can't think of anything SMART to say and also in a crowd I can't SING or join in well with the others. It makes me feel foolish, and I want to run away from it all.

How can I overcome this, and make people sit up and listen?

I'm a back number, and how I hate it.

The boys are crazy to meet me, and often ask to be introduced. But that is the end of it. In such a very short time I can see their interest dwindle.

I am modern, and I neck a little. I know that is what they want. When I meet them, they speak friendly enough, I admit, but none of them want to come to see me STEADY. And that is what hurts. Sometimes I am all down in the dumps and not very pleasant.

I try to forget myself, but can't. Please help me, Miss Brunot. THANK YOU.

Dear young reader, in your one sentence you, unconsciously, give me a LINE on yourself which perhaps you are not aware of. You say you are NOT ALWAYS PLEASANT. Maybe the boys agree with this. And that may be one reason they steer clear of you. There are too many hardships in the workaday world for a young fellow to want to spend his leisure with a temperamental girl who, as likely as not, may be cranky.

SMILES WIN POPULARITY

Smiles win popularity against good looks, good voices and loud antics. In thinking over the very popular girls I have known, there is not one who did not have a winning smile and a pleasant manner.

There are some of us who are unfortunate enough to look more interesting than we are. I can think of one such girl. She was always a great disappointment to the boys. They all wanted to meet her. But soon afterwards they began yawning. Now if that is your case, set about to improve yourself. Get away from your grouches. Genuinely interest yourself in others. Even if you can't sing and be the life of the party, admire this quality OUT LOUD in others.

Timid little mice have their place socially as well as roaring lions.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 15 years. That sounds very young, but something must be done for me. Perhaps I should have been born 30 years ago. The girls I know all go in crowds from which they exclude me. I don't have any friends, except one, and without her I simply could not exist. Although my mother uses makeup, she forbids it to me. And everybody else seems to use it nowadays.

KNOWS LIFE

I never go to parties, and I am firmly against the so-called petting done so openly. In my idea it is no crime for a boy to put him arm about you, but when he starts real lovemaking, then he ought to be stopped.

Most girls claim I have an inferiority complex. And if this keeps up, as I grow older, it does seem there won't be much use in my being alive.

I am of firm opinions. I know life. Yet what changes might you suggest for me?

RUTH.

Are you quite sure, Ruth, that you KNOW LIFE? Fifteen, and knowing everything is quite extraordinary. I do not think you have what we call an inferiority complex. It may be a little the other way!

PLENTY OF TIME

You have plenty of years ahead for rouge! A girl of 15 should glory in her natural health and beauty! There will be so many long and more harrowing years for the makeup, you speak about. Why not enjoy the sun of the teens while it is yours? There is nothing after all, so bewitching as a girl of 15!

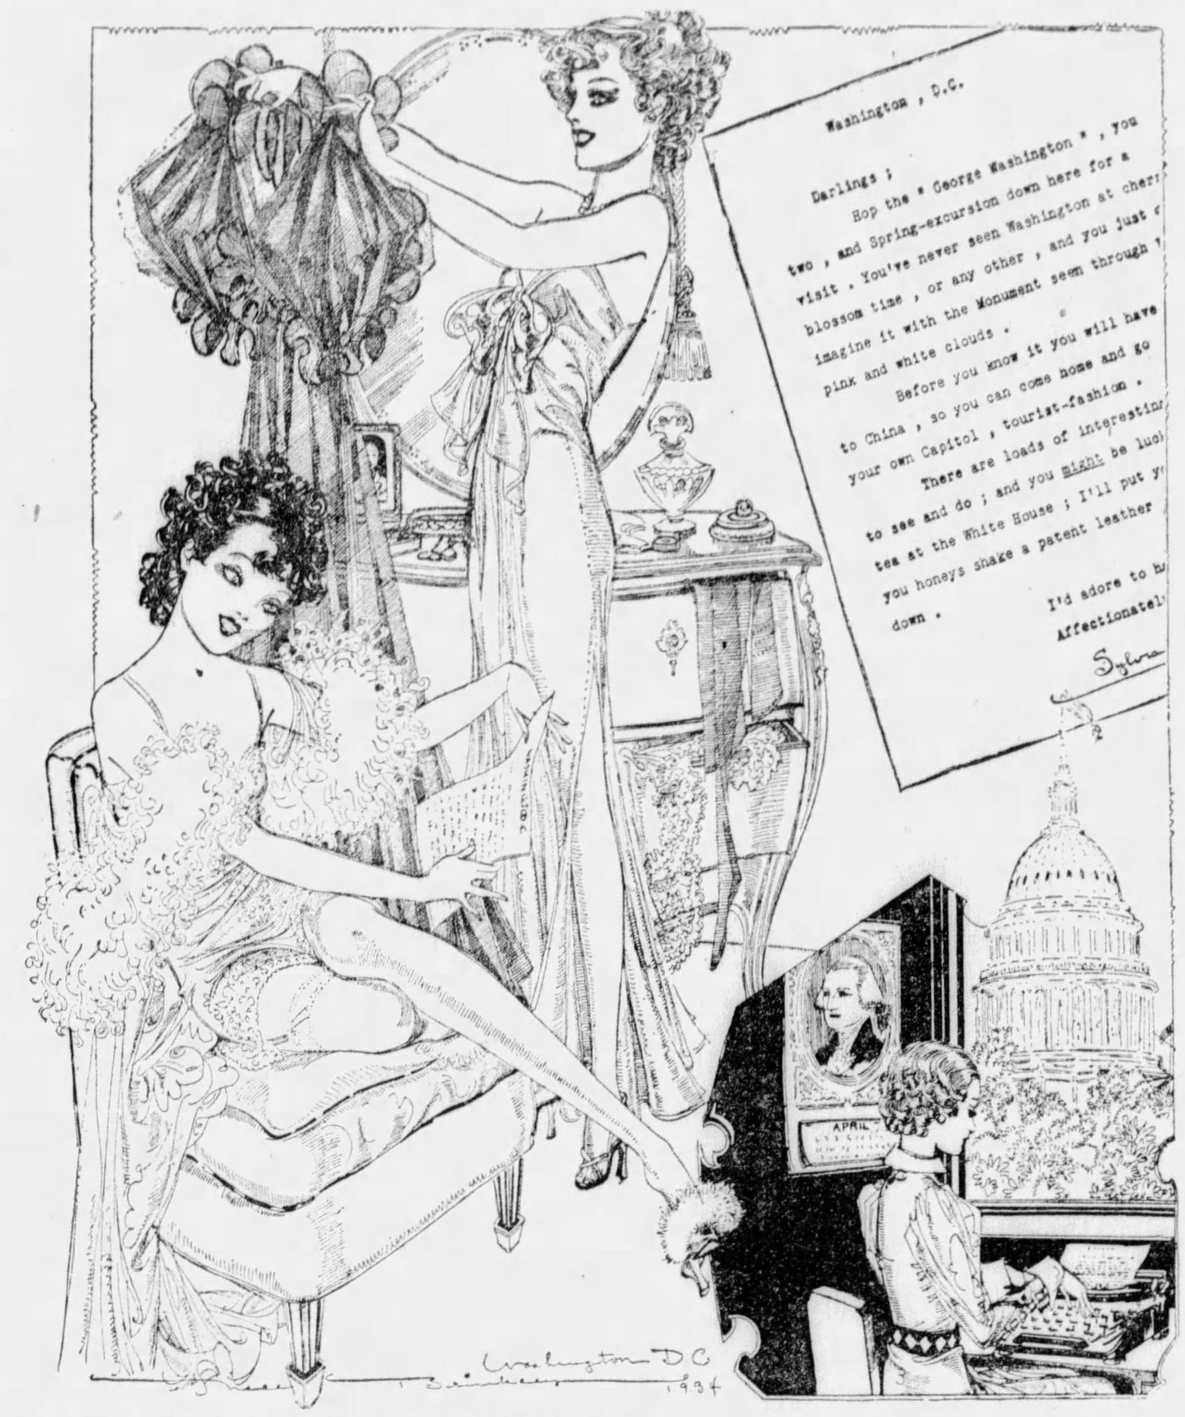
I agree with you upon the straying of the masculine arm. And that an overdose of lovemaking should be TABOO.

To make friends, as I have said before, one must be one! Learn to listen, and be less OPINIONATED. Learn to give and take, socially. Learn to smile and join in heartily with other people's sports. You have many years ahead, and as they evolve into actualities, you may discover you have a great deal to live for. Let me hear from you again. You have some good ideas in that sweet young head of yours.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

MISS AMERICA SEES WASHINGTON, D. C.—NO. 1

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



Sally and Sue—Susan for long—are all a-twitter and a-twirl, and the reason is one that would go to your head, too, be it plain masculine or decorative feminine! There are gowns being counted and stockings being examined by intent blue and hazel eyes, with a view to finding out just how much verve they have left in their silky meshes. There are diaphanies being carefully mended, the very best chosen and new ones indulged in; new spring chapeaux being tried on and gurgled over; bags dragged out from their winter hibernation and dusted. AND, since a delirious new frock or two have been added to the best old one, the precious bank-account is being minutely counted!

Because Sally and Sue have an invitation! They have been looking, from clear across the sea, at a queen and part of the old world that is her setting. Now they are going to see the place that every little boy and girl can tell you about in their sleep, that grownups who have never seen it can almost draw you a picture of—WASHINGTON, D. C.

Came today, along with the first sniff of actual spring—not official, for the official young lady spring is often swathed in furs and has a pink nose—an invitation from the girl secretary of a Big Man there to "put up" with her for a spring vacation, and see the formal, the informal, the fascinating sights there are to see in the Capital. To see the first family, perhaps; ambassadors, soldiers, dances, hearings, cheery-blossoms, the lovely buildings, teas; to see life in springtime in Washington, on the historic Potomac!

"Affectionately, Sylvia," she signs the wonderful bid.

Sylvia is a red-head. Sally is a blonde. Sue is night-dark. We shall see what they see.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Optimistic Slam

"Good! I felt there was a Slam in the hand somewhere," remarked the optimistic South in the hand below, after his partner had fulfilled a doubled six-notrump contract. In bidding, as in life, all people are divided into two general classifications—the pessimists and the optimists, and in this hand, which was played in the Bridge Club of Montreal, both North and South could be considered reasonably optimistic in the bidding, which brought about such a happy (for them) conclusion. Mrs. Ella G. Pimm tells the story, but does not further identify the characters.

West, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 6 4 ♡ A Q 10 8 ◇ 7 6 ♣ Q J 2
♠ K 7 ♡ K J 7 6 2 ◇ 10 2 ♣ A 9 6 5	West North East South	♠ A 8 5 3 2 ♡ 5 4 3 ◇ 9 3 ♣ K 4 3
	♠ J 9 ♡ 9 ◇ A K Q J 8 5 4 ♣ 10 8 7

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	1 N T	2 ♠	3 ◇
Pass	3 N T	Pass	6 N T
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding by the vulnerable partnership certainly did not lack dash. North's notrump Overcall of the heart bid is sound enough so far as the heart situation is concerned but very unsound as regards the rest of the hand. The subsequent bid of three notrump over the bid of three diamonds cannot be criticized as, after all, North does hold stoppers in all the suits except that old by his partner at the range of three. Of course, South's bid of six notrump utterly lacks justification.

East's Opening lead was the heart 5, and North won with the Ace. North then ran down seven rounds of diamonds and as East discarded spades, he discarded his clubs. At the ninth trick East had bared down to the spade Ace, figuring that as North had bid notrump over his bid of spades, he probably had the rest. The four hands were as follows:

	♠ Q 10 6 ♡ Q 10 ◇ — ♣ —
♠ K 7 ♡ J 7 ◇ — ♣ A	West North East South	♠ A ♡ 4 ◇ — ♣ K 4 3
	♠ J 9 ♡ — ◇ — ♣ 10 8 7

The spade Knave was led from Dummy and West went up with the King, with the plan of cashing the club Ace for the setting trick. East, of course, was forced to win, and instead of returning a club returned the heart 4, whereupon North won the remaining tricks and fulfilled the contract.

The moral, if there is any moral, is that it pays to be an optimist both in the bidding and, if you are in a bad contract, then also in the play.

Household Hints

A teaspoon of melted butter added to pancake mixture just before frying will improve the color and prevent the pancakes from sticking to the pan.

Silver articles used only occasionally will not tarnish in the cupboard if polished thoroughly, smeared with olive oil, and wrapped in grease-proof paper.

If a boiled custard tends to become lumpy, use a revolving egg whisk very gently until it is quite smooth. Any kind of boiled sauce will be greatly improved by this treatment.

Boiling water should never be poured into a hot water bottle; it is harmful to the rubber. There will be no danger of a hot water bottle cracking if it is rinsed out occasionally with cold water containing a few drops of ammonia. A hot water bottle should never be put away with the sides resting on each other. Blow a little air into the bottle and fix the stopper quickly. Before storing a hot water bottle, care should be taken that it is quite dry.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Party Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A lady invited six ladies to an afternoon tea to meet a friend who was visiting at her home. Is it correct for each lady to thank the hostess when leaving, or to write a note of thanks afterward? Or is either necessary?

F.

When a guest leaves a party, he or she should always thank the hostess for the hospitality. If she is an especially gracious person, she or he will probably write a note of thanks, too, but at least the thank-you-for-the-happy - time - that - I-have-had should be said.

Ladies First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Who goes through the revolving door first, the man or the woman? T. D.

The man should stand at the right of the woman, and as she enters the compartment of the revolving door, he pushes the near edge of the door, to get it started, so that it will be easier for the woman to continue the swing of the door.

If the door is already in motion, the man helps the woman to enter the compartment, by putting his hand under her elbow.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Aims Verbal Darts at Madge

More than once I have remarked the absolute imperturbability of Avis Arlen when, as often happens, she is royally snubbed. She appears to have a mental epidermis equal to the physical one possessed by a rhinoceros, but I have often suspected that it is only her tenacity, her determination to win her objective at any cost, which enables her to present an unmoved front to snubs which would prompt a sensitive girl to instant departure from the scene of her humiliation.

On the other hand, a girl of a finer nature would not lay herself open to the rebuffs which Avis actually invites. But that inwardly Avis writhes at these rebuffs and mentally "chalks them up" to be repaid with interest, at the first opportunity, to the persons responsibe for them, I am as sure as I am that her calmness in defeat is worthy of a great strategist.

IGNORES CUT

Hugh Grantland's courteous but distinctly formal leave-taking of her—after her pretty possessive air, her use of his given name, her tacit appeal for defense against Harry Underwood's gibe—must have drawn blood. But she ignored his leave-taking superbly as if she had not heard it, turning instantly to Harry Underwood as if she had not yet finished her reply to his thrust concerning her reference to the crashing breakers.

"I hope you don't think I'm unutterably stupid," she said appealingly. "I'll promise not to exaggerate that way again."

"Bless you, child, don't take me seriously," the big man said bluffly, and I guessed that even though he realized the theatricalism of her apology, his innate chivalry was causing him compunction for the jest he had made at her expense.

"Nobody ever takes me seriously,' he went on plaintively. "Even my frau over there, or rather, especially my frau over there"— he waved a dolorous hand at Lillian—"never gives anything I say the honor of a second's serious consideration."

Avis gave a silvery little laugh.

"Perhaps she knows you better than anybody else," she said coquettishly.

With the burlesqued melodrama in which he is so adept, he staggered back with his arms hugging his waist.

"A blow below the belt!" he exclaimed. "I call for the referee."

AVIS STRIKES BACK

But Avis was no longer paying any attention to him. She hooked her arm into that of her mother, and lounged lazily toward me.

"Isn't Mr. Graham back yet?" she asked silkily. "He and Miss Fairfax left the beach at the same time we did. We had a bit of a race, and Hugh's car won. He's the most marvelous driver, don't you think? But I should think they'd be back by this time. I do hope nothing has happened to them."

EXCUSES DELAY

From her standpoint, she considered that she had given me two serious thrusts—one, in calling Hugh by his given name, and thus apparently establishing a camaraderie between them potential for closer intimacy—and the other, in her insinuation that Dicky and Edith were loitering somewhere in the moonlight—an insinuation that I knew she meant me to read between the lines of her apparent solicitude for the missing pair.

"Oh, I am sure nothing has happened to them," I replied ailily, "but it is very sweet of you to be worried about them. However, I happen to know my husband's little ways. When he is beaten in a race, he invariably slows the car down as far as possible, and loafs along home."

"Sulking?" Avis asked with another little laugh. "How I shall tease him about that when he gets home."

I sent a mental apology to Dicky. But anything seemed better than to countenance her hint of Dicky's dalliance in the moonlight with Edith Fairfax.

Harry Underwood, however, was not concerned with anything save the practical problem presented by her words.

"Look here, Hugh," he said, ignoring Avis, "did you race the Dicky-bird? And where did you pass him?"

Brighten Your Home With Pillows

Pillows—what an endless amount go to making a home comfortable. Now with the time approaching when porch and sunroom will again be in constant use, new pillows are a crying need. These carried out in simple embroidery are very effective done in wool (left-overs are just the thing to use if a variety of color is wanted) or in rope silk. Each flower can be in a different color or shaded with a touch of green or black for leaves. The type of embroidery is one that works up quickly, and is equally appropriate in living room, bedroom or porch. The pattern contains sufficient motifs for either of the cushions shown and the scarf.

Pattern 536 contains a transfer pattern of two and two reverse motifs 5x5½ inches, two motifs 4½x7 inches, four and four reverse motifs 2¾x4 inches, and two valance edgings for curtains, complete directions for making a variety of articles and for doing the embroidery as well as yardage requirements and color suggestions.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Pellagra Stubborn Ailment

A victim of a chronic skin disorder is sometimes discouraged when cure is not effected immediately. Few realize that inflammations of the skin are often difficult to cure and require persistent and long continued treatment. Perhaps no other disorder of the skin is more stubborn in its reaction to treatment that that disturbance known as "pellagra."

Dr. Copeland.

For many years little was known about this baffling and annoying affliction. At one time it was thought to result from infection. It is now definitely accepted as a vitamin deficiency disease. By this is meant that the disturbance appears in individuals who live on a diet deficient or lacking in certain necessary vitamins.

This theory was only recently accepted and we are indebted to the wonderful research work conducted by the United States health service. They carefully investigated the cause of pellagra and found that where a diet is deficient in certain vitamins, the disease occurs and that its cure is brought about by correction of the diet.

Contrary to a popular idea, the disease is not necessarily a poor man's disease. It is found in well-to-do individuals who eat the wrong kind of food as well as in those who eat too little food. It is a common occurence in individuals who have attempted to reduce by means of severe and prolonged methods of starvation. Pellagra is sometimes found in sufferers from digestive disorders. These persons are unable to digest nourishing foods because of some organic defect.

Victims of pellagra may have marked nervous symptoms. When overlooked or untreated, these symptoms may lead to melancholia, with hallucinations, stupor and convulsions. The intestinal symptoms are varied but are usually characterized by persistent diarrhea and intestinal upset. The sufferer constantly complains of swollen and bleeding gums. The disease gradually undermines the health, lowering the resistance to infections and other constitutional diseases.

Bear in mind, that a varied and well balanced diet is essential to the prevention of pellagra. The diet should contain fresh fruits, vegetables, milk, cream and eggs.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Sunday evening Pippin went over to Kathleen's. The moment she stepped into the McPike living room, she felt a suppressed tense excitement. Edward had brought a girl to supper. She was sitting on the davenport with both legs curled under her, leaning forward and laughing at Edward, who had just spoken. She was a thin, yellow-haired girl with small teeth set far apart, a bright complexion and an arched upper lip which receded and showed the gums when she talked. Except for this and that her nose was flat at the bridge, she was pretty.

When Pippin was introduced the girl stood up and held her hand rather high for Pippin to shake. She said: "I'm very pleased to make your acquaintance," and giggled. Her name was Sonia Vronsky.

Kathleen, sitting very straight, and talking rapidly, gave Pippin a look and very faintly moved her head in the direction of the hall.

They knew each other well. The look said: "I have news. Rush upstairs."

Kathleen closed the door of her room, her eyes blazing. She was almost in tears.

"Edward is going to marry that!"

Pippin's mouth opened with the shock.

"Don't stand there looking dumb. I tell you Edward is going to marry that! We never even dreamed he had a girl."

Pippin said weakly: "You must be joking."

Edward Engaged

"I'm not joking. He asked mother if he could bring her here to supper. Then he says we had all better be nice, because they are engaged. He must be out of his mind. Sonia Vronsky! Did you ever hear such a name?"

"But where did he meet her?"

"She works down there at the chemical plant, pasting labels, or washing bottles—I don't know what. Can you imagine Edward, the brilliant, the moral, the magnificent Edward—"

It was just too much for Kathleen. Her face was white, her eyes stormy.

"Did you get the way she says: 'Yes ma'am,' to every question? She's supposed to be Russian. Think of it! Out of that country of poets and rebels and brilliant women, Edward would have to pick the one numbskull! Sonia Vronsky! She took the name from some cheap novel!"

The door opened. Mary stood in the room. She looked stern and grieved.

"Kathleen, we're going into the dining room now. I want you to come down stairs and be as gracious as you know how. That goes for you, too, Pippin."

Kathleen gave her mother a defiant look. "Yes, mother, smile and be courteous and pretend it doesn't hurt when they cut your heart out!"

"You heard what I said, Kathleen! You're very ready to criticise Sonia's manners. Remember there are no manners in the world where there is no kindness."

"But mother, can it really be true?"

Dinner Nerve-Wracking

"I'm afraid it is. They're to be married next month."

"I wonder if he murdered some relative of hers, or what he has done that makes him this mad."

The dinner was strained, difficult, nerve-wracking. Kevin sat next to Sonia. He tried to talk. He had two very close Russian friends who were living in Germany. He kept asking Sonia questions. She couldn't answer. But Mary had evidently given him orders to be agreeable so he persevered. He asked Sonia what she thought of Stalin and the Five Year Plan. Sonia had never heard of it. Then he asked her about the Russian village where she was born and where she lived until she was 10 years old. Sonia only remembered the food she ate and that the winters were cold.

"But if you really want to learn about Russia, Dr. Malone, there's a swell movie with wolves and Siberia and the czar and that cute little czarevitch all getting shot. Gosh, it'll sure give you the creeps.

With a shrewd protective instinct, Sonia launched the conversation to the movies, in which she was amazingly versed. She knew the reputed salaries of the stars, stories about their former wives and husbands, she knew just how moviedom masseuses pounded flesh off the corpulent and added curves to the thin. For the rest of the meal, she dazzled them with these facts.

Sorry for Edward

They went upstairs after dinner. Kathleen ushered her prospective sister-in-law into her mother's room, shoved powder, lipstick and perfumes toward her, and made a dash down the hall.

Edward was in Kathleen's room. He stood with his back to the door and talked to Pippin.

"Don't you think Sonia is sweet?"

She could have wept, she felt so sorry for Edward. There was fineness in him. He deserved better than this. She put her hand on his arm, because he seemed begging a kind word for the girl he meant to marry.

She said, evading and feeling traitorous: "She's so natural, isn't she? She's frank and impulsive."

"Oh, you got that trait in her, did you, Pippin? It's what I like about Sonia. No pretense at all. She doesn't try to bluff anyone. Of course she's not particularly educated, but after all, that isn't important. I think she looks like you."

Pippin kept her eyes down. She was greatly stunned but she managed generously: "Yes, we have the same color hair; her eyes are blue, too, aren't they? She has a lovely complexion."

Kathleen Angry

Edward squeezed Pippin's hand. He said: "I knew I could count on you. I knew you'd be square."

At that moment Kathleen walked into her room, her whole manner bristling. She saw her brother and said coldly: "Oh, hello."

Edward gave her a black look. "What are you sore about?"

"I don't get you," said Kathleen.

"Well, I got you and I'm not going to forget it either! She's a stranger. This is your house. You could have been decent whether you like her or not. After all, it's none of your business."

"Oh, no? It's none of my business when I see my brother getting his head and his heart chopped up. After all the years we've loved you and taken your orders and you've yelled at Pippin and me, then you go and pick out an utter moron. When I put a faint red tint on my fingernails you went rushing to mamma to save me from being indecent. Did you get Sonia's? Almost black! They call it the Tortoise Shell Tint in case you need enlightenment."

Edward's face was very white. His lips drew so that you could see the outline of his teeth.

He said only: "I don't have to explain Sonia to you. Because she hasn't the frills you think she has no quality. Well, she has!"

Warns Brother

"Don't kid yourself, Edward! You can't abide your own sister, Janice. She's such a bore! She's a vegetable! Janice has at least HEARD of a five-year plan. And she's not a Russian."

"You don't like Sonia. You're blind with prejudices."

Kathleen's eyes narrowed. Little fiery darts flew from between their lids.

"And in six months from now, Edward, when you're ready to blow your brains out with boredom and despair, remember what I told you."

Edward ground his teeth, glared at his sister and flung himself from the room.

Kathleen drooped on the bed, her jaws clinched and her eyes brimming. She kept her fist pressed against her mouth and her glance hard on the wall.

Finally she shrugged: "Well—I've lost my brother! How can he look at her and not want to scream? She hasn't two brains in her head. Isn't it frightful the way families go to pot? The dumb ribbon clerk Janice marries, this NOTHING that Edward selects, and now Kevin with every one banking on his future, rushing to ruin for a shallow vixen."

Said Pippin on a tight choked breath: "Kevin? What about Kevin?"

Now Go On

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The short and stocky girl will avoid cross lines, ruffles and frills if she is wise. The V neck is better for her than the round one; elbow length sleeves will make her arms look shorter. After the age of 17 there's not much chance of adding inches, so the best thing the abbreviated lassie can do is to form the habit of holding herself erect and develop graceful carriage, by which efforts she will appear taller.

Exotic eyebrows that take such forms as were never dreamed of in the past are about at the end of their popularity. Women who are in the front ranks of the beauty parade are setting their eyebrows according to normal patterns. The line is beautifully clear, the brow stays narrow. The far end finishes in a thin tapering point. But the skyward, expressionless tilt is definitely out.

IMPEACHMENT OF PRESIDENT JOHNSON—SERVING SUMMONS—HIS TRIAL (1868)

Controversy grew bitter between President Andrew Johnson (conciliatory toward the South) and Congress (revengeful toward it). An attempt to impeach the President in 1866 was unsuccessful. To limit his power, the Tenure of Office Act was forced through (1867) making the consent of the Senate necessary for any dismissal from office by the President.

Thus, when President Johnson discharged (March, 1867) Stanton (who ceased to support his policies) as Secretary of War and appointed Gen. Grant, the Senate refused to approve it, Stanton resuming his post in September. Five months later, the President replaced Stanton by Gen. Thomas. This was the immediate cause of President Johnson's impeachment by the House charging violation of the Tenure of Office Act, to which other accusations were added. The Senate, presided over by Chief Justice S. P. Chase, tried Johnson (March, 1868). Found guilty, 35 to 19, but the required two-third vote not obtained, Johnson was acquitted, a result now considered just. He completed his presidential term.

MANUFACTURE OF CALCIUM AND QUICKLIME

Calcium (Ca) can be produced by electrolysis—like sodium and potassium—from its chloride ($CaCl_2$), a by-product of the Solvay soda process. Above left: The Sewar-Kuegelgen electric cell (U. S. Pat. No. 880,760) for commercial production of calcium.

Calcium oxide or quicklime (CaO) is produced by heating limestone ($CaCO_3$). To separate the ash from product, firebox is built around the kiln (center) combustion gases passing through the fill of limestone. The quicklime—white stony mass—is removed at bottom. Reaction: $CaCO_3$ + 42,000 cal. = CaO + CO_2.

CaO with water gives calcium hydroxide, a base called slaked lime, evolving much heat: $CaO + H_2O = Ca(OH)_2$ + 15,540 cal.

Calcium hydroxide is used, where cheap alkali is desired as in manufacturing of sodium-potassium hydroxide, ammonia, water softening, mortar making, etc. When mortar hardens: $Ca(OH)_2 + CO_2$ (from air) = $CaCO_3 + H_2O$ (evaporates). (Chemistry)

THE VOW OF THE KNIGHTS

In the "Holy Grail" (publ. 1869) the seventh of the "Idylls of the King," by Tennyson, pure Percival, a former knight of King Arthur, tells to his brother monk Ambrosius how the Holy Grail was seen by his sister and the stainless knight Galahad.

The "Holy Grail," the cup which caught the last drop of the blood of the Crucified, was taken to Heaven becoming visible to the perfect only. Arthur's knights vowed to search for the Grail and left the court. Almost all failed, even noble Lancelot, who struggled fiercely against his only sin. King Arthur bemoaned the departure of his knights foretelling their failure.

Tennyson symbolizes, that holiness that beholds the invisible kingdom, lies in honest love of men, doing our duty rather than to seek apart from earth a Heaven for ourselves.

CONSECRATION OF A KNIGHT

MADE BY REVOLUTION (1830) KING LOUIS PHILIPPE IS OVERTHROWN BY IT (1848)

Guizot: History of France

The same year autocratic King Charles X fled during the second French Revolution to England. Gen. Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans was proclaimed King of the French (above left). He encouraged commerce and industry leading France to prosperity. Later his reign annoyed the people seeing again one class privileged, the newly-created rich bourgeoisie, which took the place of the nobility and clergy preferred in former years.

Successful for a while in suppressing the people's outbreaks for liberty and escaping six attempts on his life, he was overthrown in February, 1848, by the third French Revolution. Louis Philippe fled to England. The Queen, after a futile appeal in Parliament (above right) in behalf of her 9-year-old son, followed him into exile. The Second French Republic was proclaimed. Louis Napoleon, a nephew of Napoleon I, was elected president, December, 1848. The French example encouraged other suppressed people in Europe to rise against their oppressors. (World History)

BLOOD—MEDIUM OF NOURISHMENT AND ELIMINATION

Blood is the fluid medium through which all the cells of body are nourished and waste material removed. It consists of a slightly alkaline, yellowish, sticky, salty fluid, the plasma (2/3 of blood volume) in which numerous corpuscles are suspended (1/3 of volume). The majority of the corpuscles are red cells, giving color to blood of humans and vertebrates (except amphioxus and leptocephalus.). Other corpuscles are the white (lymphocytes and leucocytes), the platelets (thrombocytes) and the "blood dust" (extremely small particles).

As blood is common tissue of all organs (its weight is about 1/20 that of body) the physical, chemical and morphological changes of its constituents are important clues for health and disease. A thorough medical examination includes tests of blood. (54—III—A)

It Was a Busy Season

Getting so newspapermen must have radio appeal, stage presence and banquet personality.

We got figuring where we went last winter and it turned out quite a list.

Sometimes it was a personal triumph. Very often the audience won.

The Omaha Motor Show was hard work. Eleven speeches in two days. All of them the same.

Father and Son Night at Pelham High School. We fooled the kids.

Palm Beach. Flopped at this one. Cold weather.

Engine Company No. 3 at Mount Vernon. Well, it was a bad night outdoors, anyway.

Junior Chamber of Commerce at Albany. Traded speeches with George Jiggs McManus and went okay. George pancaked.

Adventurers' Club in New York. We can lie as good as they can.

Back to Albany for the Byrd broadcast with Ripley and Rube Goldberg. This one turned out to be anonymous. Don't think that even Byrd heard of it.

Boston Advertising Club. Went there twice to make one speech. Got sick on first trip. Audience reciprocated on second.

Dinner to Gov. Moore in New Jersey. They got one look at us and postponed it.

Baltimore Advertising Club. Very chummy. Everybody talked at once.

Back to Albany for third time. No invitation essential. It was a habit by now.

Survivors of blizzard of 1888. No game. Snow.

American Legion in Brooklyn. Sang a duet with Windsor McKay.

We're not listing the local banquets in the Waldorf, Commodore, Ritz, Pennsylvania, Astor and other hotels. That's just the subway circuit.

No more talking now until December. The Bug has put his face in the garage to have his tonsils removed from the carbon.

Now Up to Congress

The County's Representatives Should Urge Additional Public Works Grants.

The delegation that went from Pittsburgh to Washington to urge the granting of a thirty million dollar federal loan for Allegheny County's proposed public works returns with fairly definite assurance that the money will be forthcoming "if, when and as" Congress grants an additional appropriation to the Public Works Administration. It is now incumbent on the county's representatives in Congress to work for the appropriation.

It was a strong delegation, on the whole, that went to Washington; but there was one member who, in the Sun-Telegraph's opinion, did not contribute to its strength. We refer to W. McK. Reed, who was prominent in the news lately in connection with a court case in which he was charged with inducing a man to mortgage his home and invest the money in a company which it was alleged Reed knew to be financially shaky. A Common Pleas jury upheld the charge, and the Supreme Court has sustained the verdict.

It is hard to understand why County Commissioner C. C. McGovern appointed Reed to the Allegheny County Authority. McGovern had stated, gratuitously, that if former Mayor John S. Herron were nominated for the place he would second the nomination. Commissioner W. D. Mansfield nominated Herron, who would have been an excellent man for the position, but McGovern did not second it.

McGovern nominated Reed to the Authority as a businessman and declared it was "an absolutely non-political appointment." Yet Reed acted as treasurer for the campaign of Gen. Smedley Butler for the Senate and Ralph Flinn for Auditor General in the 1932 primary, and McGovern was largely responsible for Flinn's running. Moreover, Reed recently held a position in the State Banking Department. All of this suggests that Reed is not so free from political ties as McGovern would have the people believe.

A circular issued by the County Commissioners calls attention to an evil to which many columns of space have been given in this newspaper in recent months—the evil of "oxcart government." The name has been derived from a speech by President Roosevelt in which he deplored the fact that counties and other local administrative units of government were still patterned after the fashion of oxcart days and recommended that local government be modernized.

Chairman McGovern says in the Commissioners' circular that the county, city, borough and township governments today are antiquated to the point of almost confiscating the real and personal property of the county to meet overhead expenses. There can be no hope of substantial tax reductions, he says, until duplicating and overlapping offices have been eliminated and the taxing and spending responsibility centralized in a system of which the people have control. This is strong language, but it is warranted.

Attorney General William A. Schnader, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, has come out strongly for the elimination of superfluous school districts and other administrative units which add unnecessarily to the tax burden. George H. Earle, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, has pledged himself to aid consolidation of the city and county governments in Philadelphia, which is a move of kindred character. And it may be that other candidates for the major offices have also declared against "oxcart government." But this is not enough. Legislative candidates should also tell where they stand.

Elimination of "oxcart government" may well be regarded as the major issue of the campaign. It can be effected only by legislative action and constitutional revision. Inasmuch as it will result in the loss of jobs by a horde of political parasites, strong opposition to the move is certain. Every candidate for the General Assembly should be required to pledge himself to assist in this campaign for economy and efficiency, or else be left at home.

Apropos of economy and efficiency, it is a pleasure to note that the recently formed commission which is to undertake to introduce those very desirable qualities into Pittsburgh's municipal government has begun its work with excellent prospects of success. The election of Ezra B. Whitman as chairman of the commission is a good move. He is credited with increasing efficiency in the city government of Baltimore and his services should be valuable here.

Pittsburgh has borrowed the efficiency and economy commission plan from Baltimore. We hear much of methods and plans of other cities which it is thought we should copy, but not so much of the copying of Pittsburgh's methods by other cities. Hence it is gratifying to be able to report that Philadelphia is much impressed by our system of procedure in cases involving violation of the automobile parking regulations, and the Bureau of Municipal Research there is out with the suggestion that Philadelphia copy the Pittsburgh plan.

The Pottsville "hex" slayer, who tried to justify his killing of a woman on the ground that she was a "hex" and had bewitched him, has been declared demented and committed to the state hospital for criminal insane. The good sense, if not the sanity, of those who thought there was some strange power for evil in Friday the 13th is also open to question. The accident records of the State Department of Labor and Industry show that Friday the 13th is not an especially "unlucky" day.

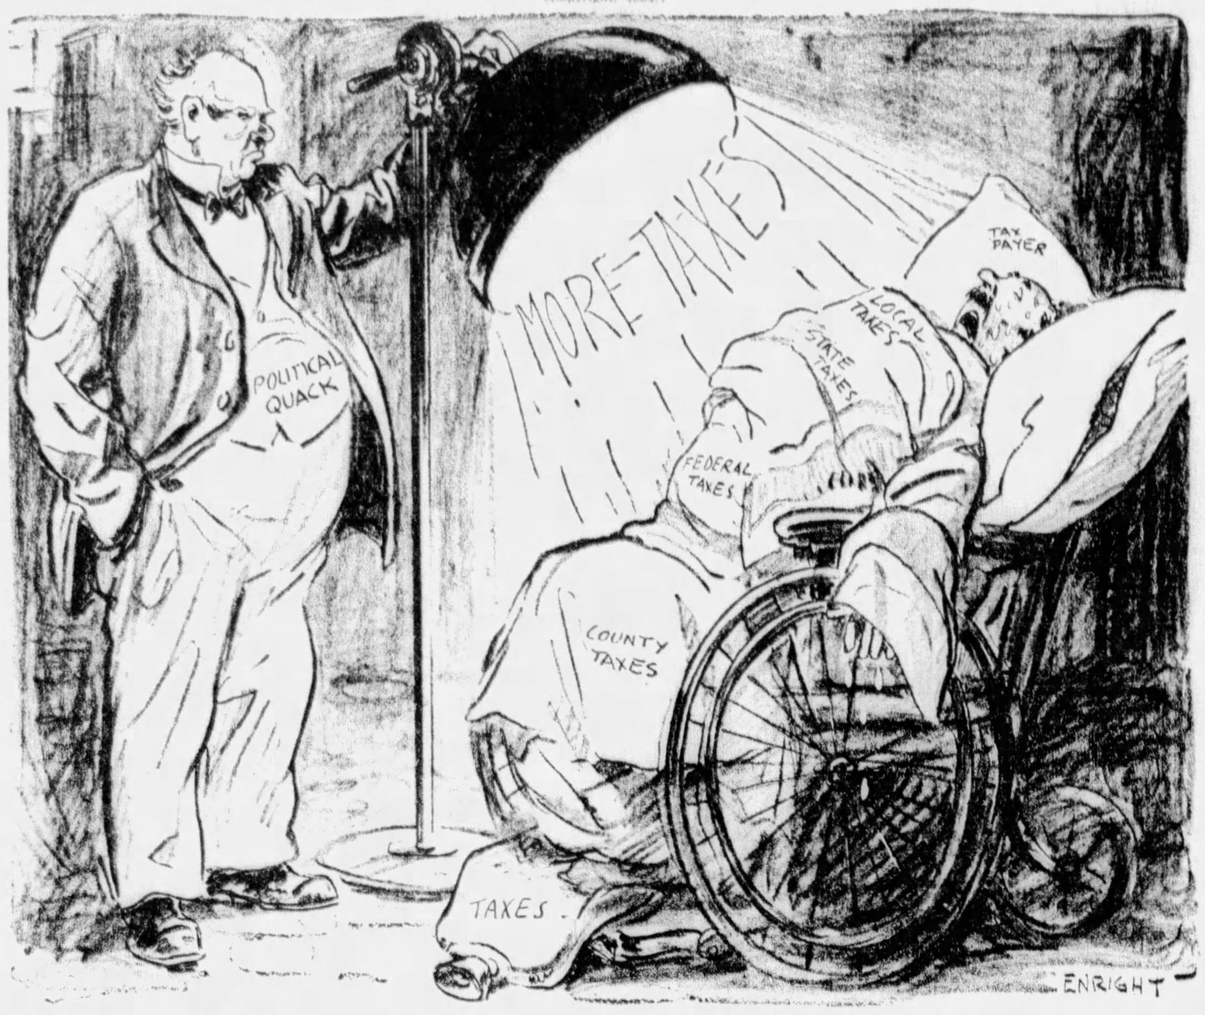
The Pittsburgh Motor Club reports an interesting test of "courtesy of the road." During a two-hour drive on the Lincoln Highway between Greensburg and McConnellsburg the other night 189 cars were passed. As they approached, the headlight beam of the test car was lowered, but only 42 of the other drivers returned the courtesy by dropping to lower headlight beams, and of the 147 which refused 86 had glaring lights. While this is deplorable, it is gratifying to learn that only one of the 189 cars had a headlight out.

*The Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, a non-*sectarian charitable enterprise which uses waste material to give work to needy people, requests the Sun-Telegraph to call attention to an intensive effort which it will make next week to collect discarded wearing apparel. Housewives are asked to prepare bundles of old clothing and send them to the nearest school. The Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries is a member of the Federation of Social Agencies and the Community Fund and is engaged in praiseworthy work.

A new serial, "First Love," by Loree R. Elking, begins in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. You will find it very entertaining. There is an abundance of other good reading matter in great variety in the magazine.

Giving Him the Heat

(Copyright, 1934.)



John G. Winant, Governor of New Hampshire, is among the distinguished leaders of the day who demand less government and less taxation of the people.

In an address at Columbia University, advocating simplification of local and State governments, he said:

"Most of us live under several blankets of government and, whether we realize it or not, sometimes these blankets bear down almost to the point of suffocation."

In actual fact the evils of duplicated government and excessive taxation are known to everybody, and still the politicians continue to make taxation worse!

But the suffering taxpayer does not have to submit.

He can COMPEL his Legislatures to abolish useless counties and overlapping districts and to reduce taxation.

For if the Legislatures do not give this relief the taxpayer can ELECT Legislatures that will!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 14.—Well, the entire household, ganging-up on the master, finally got rid of the old red slippers. I hope they are satisfied. But it's a wrench to learn one's wife, after the roll of so many trusting years, is just a doll with a sawdust heart. She instigated the mutiny.

Those slippers have been a part of me for 14 years, pals in sunshine and shadows and when I sneaked to the corner at midnight for a morning paper. With their peep-holes, run-over heels and flapping soles not even the ashman will give them a glance. Poor red slippers! Pale lost lilies!

I'll wear the new ones, faithful in my fashion. But my heart will be far away. My trouble is I'm not head of the house. Just a man of putty. Look, when I press my finger to my cheeck the impression remains! I can't even gnaw at a hang-nail without someone screaming "Stop that!"

They couldn't come to me and say "Don't you think it would be dandy to have a new pair of slippers?" Not that! No, they must wait like ghouls until I am dead to the world, snatch and hurl them Heaven knows where. A wonder they didn't think up Dutch wooden shoes to take their place.

* * *

I can sit here humped over hour after hour, day after day, year after year working my fingers to the bone and what happens? Haven't you heard? The minute I fall asleep they make away with my comfortable slippers. I suppose if I drop into a nap here at my desk they'll yank out my bridge work. Folksey little family. Always clowning!

* * *

Try to put down imperishable words for posterity wearing tight new slippers! Well, that's what I'm doing and not a wince. Watch my fingers fly over the keyboard like a hen pecking up corn. Keep the music playing, that's all I ask. I'm always pale this time of day. Just a unit of bio-chemical behavior anyway. Pay no attention to me. I'm dandy. I want everybody to be happy and live a long time. See, I'm going into a pas seul. Watch me nijinsky on one toe. Don't fan me, I'm just swell. No pain, pulse normal, respiration simply elegant.

* * *

Where was I? O, yes, an intelligent and respectable gentleman, named Harry Silvey, who is still living at the age of 80 and upwards was in his cornfield in the township of Cunningham, Mass., west of Bunker Hill . . . I'm a little mixed up. The food I packed away for breakfast makes me bloaty. You know, the vapours! It couldn't be these tight slippers. They are fine. My dear wife got them for me as a surprise. Just go ahead and do whatever you are doing as though I wasn't here. I'll collect myself in a minute. I feel so silly getting faintly this way. An enthralling bit of biography: "He swooned in tight slippers.

* * *

Now I am all right. I'd have to be all right or, look. I couldn't bend over and touch the floor with my finger tips this way 18 times. I've got to keep a cool head. Awk! I'm feeling numb again. And for Goodness Sake my knee jerks are like an old rusty hinge! I'll open a window. Who started those bells ringing? It's no use trying to bear up. I've simply got to yank off these slippers awhile. There! That will rest my feet. Everybody has to break in new slippers. That's part of life, breaking in slippers. Break, break, break, on the bleak gray shores! Not many people could suffer tortures of the damned this way and bust right out into poetry. That's the result of living on a higher plane!

Up here in this stratosphere we wear tight shoes and like 'em. You must come up to see us sometime! I'm getting flighty again. Perhaps if I'd put my feet in cold water, I could get hold of myself. Wait a minute. I know a joke to say. "Hot dogs!" Maybe my mind is clearing up a little at that. Let's see if I can say: "Sling a slim sluice slickly." Not without people raising their umbrellas. Nothing feels so slick as getting off a tight slipper.

Say, this padding around in sock feet is the billiards. I'm cooled out on grandeur anyway. Tomorrow I toss my lavender water out the window. I'll run with the sockless Jerry Simpsons instead of the Noel Cowards. Maybe this is a part of the Brighter World movement that people are never happy until they lose all their material possessions. The dear income tax folk might like to known I'm peeled down to my socks. Shoeless Odd, the Park Avenue Hermit!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Prayer

It is well to pray as the bishop prays
In the house that is heaven's gate,
Where through lofty windows fall rainbow rays
On the altar's golden plate.

The mind that is versed in the mysteries
Of the Lord's surpassing grace
Can fashion fitting and sonorous pleas
To voice in God's holy place.

But I would pray as a child might ask
Who stands at his mother's side
And who knows whatever her toil her task
That his wish will not be denied.

Oh, not as the bishop in lawn and lace
Though his prayers be pure and warm
But just as a child from his well-loved place
In the crook of his mother's arm

For if I could pray as a child who stands
Clinging, close to his mother's knee,
To a God who loves and who understands,
All I ask would be granted to me!

LISTEN, WORLD!

Let Life Do a Job on You

Long and long ago, before Mohammed, before Christ or Confucius, before any known prophet or religion, certain Eastern wise men went out into life, carrying only a begging bowl.

They put away homes, positions, wealth and power. They left their friends and families. They stripped themselves of all clothes save a few rags, and went their way without money, bedding or other provisions, into the searing sun and snarling storm, carrying only small bowls which kindly strangers filled with scraps of food. No matter what they once possessed, that became their only means of livelihood. And to this day, certain old world priests and philosophers have followed that way of life.

A silly way to live? A lazy way? That depends on how you look at it. It is true, those wise men often went hungry. They suffered pitifully from disease. They died miserably. But they felt that it was all worthwhile. For they sought more than the few scraps of food which fell into their begging bowl. And though they starved and died —they found what they sought.

Those begging bowls symbolized something beside poverty. They were a symbol of Humility. The men who carried them sought wisdom. They had learned that they could not find wisdom in themselves. Nor could they find wisdom as long as they let their own Selves get in their way. And so, with their wealth, position, happiness, comfort and safety they put aside something much more precious—they put aside PRIDE.

Pride, to a certain degree, is a great thing. But it is also a dangerous thing. A man's pride may help him go far and fast. But it may also shackle him entirely—prevent him from moving at all. A man may discover many things through pride. But he may also be blinded completely. The more you think you know, the less you really know. The wisest man is the humblest man.

So the wise men of the East, seeking Truth, put aside their pride and became beggars. They went out into life with the begging bowl of humility. They went out asking life to fill them—not only with food, but with wisdom, with experience, with a knowledge of other men, a knowledge of God and His laws.

You, too, would like to know what life is all about. Secretly, you're restless and discontented. You say to yourself, "I'm not really getting much out of life." It interests you to read about these men who felt that they got the most out of life by becoming beggars.

But it wouldn't be very sensible for you, a modern American, to follow their example literally. You'd be jailed as a vag before nightfall. And quite properly sentenced for dodging important duties to your family and community. Nevertheless, if you're wise, you'll go through life with a begging bowl—asking to be filled. For that's the only way to discover what life is all about.

You'll never discover what life is all about by reading books . . . or thinking thoughts . . . or arguing . . . or philosophizing . . . or following strange cults . . . or trying to make programs with Fate or bargains with God. You can only discover what life is all about by getting out of your own way . . . stripping yourself of your vanity, stubbornness and prejudice . . baring yourself to grief and pain, humiliation, misunderstanding and persecution . . . letting life get at you with all her fire and frost—and raise Hades with you!

Meaning what? Meaning that you should quit your present job with the insurance company and take a nice long sea voyage? Or let your mother-in-law take care of the kids while you take a course in music, asthetic dancing or journalism? Nothing of the sort! Meaning simply that you should stay where you are—BUT LET LIFE DO A JOB ON YOU!

Stop trying to duck reality. Stop trying to make the Truth square up with your two-by-four notions. FACE FACTS! FACE THEM WITHOUT ACCIDENT INSURANCE!

Hold out the begging bowl of your humility and let life pour in her Truth—jagged bone and tough gristle—along with the sound meat. Then sink your teeth into that mess, as the underdog has to sink his teeth into it. Take things as they come, as he has to take them. Then, and only then, will you know what You and Life and your Fellowman are all about.

Text for Today

Remember the word which Moses the servant of the Lord commanded you, saying, The Lord your God hath given you rest, and hath given you this land.—Joshua, 1:13.

Roosevelt, Dern, Murphy Protest P. I. Tax

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Be just and fear not.—Shakespeare.

THE President, the Secretary of War and the Governor General of the Philippines have united in a reminder to the Congress that any modifications of existing trade relations between the Philippines and the mainland would violate the so-called Philippine independence act, which Congress passed only a few weeks ago.

By the terms of that legislation, as Secretary Dern has said, a contract was entered into which fixed trade relations between the islands and the mainland for a period of years.

Now the House repudiates this contract by voting a prohibitive tariff on copra and coconut oil from the Philippines, which would rob nearly four million Filipinos of their means of livelihood.

Since the tariff act of 1913, free trade, with certain restrictions, has existed between the islands and the mainland. And as long as the islands remain a part of the United States, this arrangement cannot be justly upset without the consent of the American people and the Philippine people.

* * *

Appears Absolute Breach of Contract

THE action of the House appears to have been an absolute breach of contract. It violates the obligation of the United States to a dependent people ten thousand miles across the Pacific. The pretense that the exclusion of Philippine copra and coconut oil will aid the American farmer is an insult to him because it assumes that he is willing to be aided at the expense of the honor of his country, and one of the chief industries of a despondent people.

This pretense is also an insult to the intelligence of the American farmer who knows perfectly well that cottonseed oil is not a satisfactory substitute for coconut oil and that coconut oil is only one of several oils which compete with animal fats.

As a matter of fact, the same lobby which put through the so-called Philippine independence bill a few weeks ago is largely to blame for the misinformation that has misled many conscientious members of Congress into believing that delivering a death blow to the coconut industry of the Philippines will be beneficial to the American farmer.

Free trade between the United States and the Philippines since 1913 has been of advantage both to the islands and the mainland. The bulk of the external trade of the islands is with the United States. Over eighty-one per cent of the Philippine exports are shipped to this country, and sixty-three per cent of the external purchases of the islands are made in the United States.

* * *

Facts as Given By Secretary Dern

HERE are some facts about American trade with the Philippines, which Secretary Dern gave to the House before it voted the iniquitious tariff against which President Roosevelt so justly protests:

"The Philippine Islands stand first as purchasers of United States dairy products . . . Our dairy industry should not overlook this fact when it advocates an excise tax which presumably will adversely affect our export market for dairy products.

"The Philippines also stand first in the purchase of United States cotton textiles. Other exports to the Philippines by which Americans profit are tobacco products, paper, rubber, iron and steel, electrical and sugar mill machinery, automobiles, chemicals, drugs and books. A complete list of the articles imported into the Philippine Islands from the United States would embrace almost the entire list of articles raised and produced in this country.

"All of these goods are admitted to the Philippine Islands free of duty, while imports from other countries are forced to pay an average of approximately 20 per cent ad valorem."

Secretary Dern put this question to the Congress:

"Have we the moral right to try to build up one group of our producers by tearing down another group which also lives under the American flag?"

The answer to this question, as Congress is well aware, is "No." And President Roosevelt will have the support of the American people in his protest against the bad faith toward the Philippine people which the wicked tariff voted by the House would involve.

When you return at night, Mr. Husband, do you state that you don't want to hear anything about the troubles which have taken place in your home during the day?

You make the excuse that so many annoying things happen during working hours that you want peace when you get home.

As a home-partner you must share its troubles as well as its joys.

You demand too much when you insist that what takes place at home should be settled by the one who stays at home.

Home happenings demand the combined judgment and experience of both partners if the best sort of settlement is to be reached.

Each parents has a responsibility—regardless of outside affairs.

The home is an important organization—requiring tact, thought and planning.

Situations frequently arise which are most baffling.

Often they are too grave for the solution to devolve upon one person.

When problems come up, you should gladly give the help needed from your side.

Mr. Husband, don't shirk your duty!

Human Side of the News

Armament Makers, According to a Magazine Writer, Promote War to Sell Their Products

By Edwin C. Hill

IF you turn again to that most singular of all the books of the Bible, the Revelation of St. John the Divine, and find the sixth chapter, you may read the vision of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, the vision which came to the saint on the Isle of Patmos—an unveiling of things secret and hidden.

For there appeared before St. John four terrible horses with four terrible riders. And the first of the four horses was white, and he bore upon his back a creature with a bow and crown, and he stood for all the conquerors that have ridden forth to war and to conquer. And the second of the horses was red, and he that sat upon the Red Horse was War itself, the power to take peace from the earth, and the sign of him was a great sword. And the third horse was black, and the fourth horse was a pale horse and his name was Death.

And one's mind goes back inevitably to the Revelation of the four frightful horsemen, when one reads in that uninque and sumptuous magazine called Fortune such an arraignment of the armament makers of the world as certainly never before appeared in print. For, if we believe the writer, the armament lords of the earth, the great munitions makers, are the true horsemen of the apocalypse. A group of men, and of tremendous interests, whose business it is, with their mines, their smelters, their banks, their holding companies and their smoking factories, to supply everything needed for war, from a cannon to a cause for war itself, and whose policy it is to prolong war and to disturb peace.

Killing Soldiers As Big Business

ACCORDING to the best accountancy figures, it cost about $25,000 to kill a soldier in the World War. And we are told further, that there is one class of big businessmen in Europe that never arose to denounce the extravagance of their governments in this respect.

The reason for the silence of these big businessmen of Europe is quite simple. Killing is their business. Armaments are their stock in trade. Governments are their customers. While there may not be such a thing as an Armament Ring—no such thing as a single group of individuals who sit down in a soundproof room and plot war and the causes of war, it nevertheless appears that there is a huge and subtle force which lies behind the arming of nations and the counter-arming.

And this force consists of, or seems to consist of, huge interlocking industrial and financial organizations, controlled by a very few men, whose power, in some ways, is greater than the power of nations. These great organizations own mines, smelters, armament works, holding companies and banks. Included in their directorates are government officials, even some who have given lip service to the cause of peace before the League of Nations. And the power of the few men who control these great groups reaches into government itself.

First on the list is the name of Krupp—Krupp of Essen—the great armament works of Germany. The first of the Krupps was Alfred, who built up the giant plant at Essen and who made his name a synonym for cannon. Today, in theory, Krupp's smelts only peaceful ore, but actually, we are told, Krupp is re-arming Germany in defiance of the Treaty of Versailles.

We come now to England, and to the gigantic armament firm of Vickers-Armstrong, which sells every year about a hundred million dollars' worth of war tools. Its chairman is the Hon. Sir Herbert Lawrence, G. C. B., and upon its factories the sun never sets, for Vickers-Armstrongs is active from England to New Zealand, and from Spain to Japan. Its financial and industrial interlockings are innumerable, and it scorns a profit of less than four million, five hundred thousand a year.

Some years ago, that sardonic gentleman, Philip Snowden, said in the House of Commons:

"It would be impossible to throw a stone on the benches opposite (he meant the government benches) without hitting a member who is a shareholder in one or another of these firms."

* * *

Sir Basil Zaharoff Greatest Salesman

BUT the wiliest genius ever connected with Vickers-Armstrongs was the aging gentleman who used to be known as Basileios Zacharoas, but whom we know today as the most detached and mysterious figure in Europe, Sir Basil Zaharoff. He was the greatest armament salesman the world ever knew. He sowed half the world with machine guns. He persuaded Greece to buy a submarine and used that sale to scare Turkey into buying two.

Today, he is one of the richest men in the world as he sits in his palace at Monte Carlo, cloak wrapped around his shivering form, gazing at the picture of the Spanish Duchess who was his life-long love.

From England, in this panorama of armament makers and war breeders, we move to France, and to the gigantic organization of Schneider-Creusot. Here is the giant of the lot. It's chief is Charles Prosper Eugene Schneider, executive head of hundreds of armament firms throughout Europe. He controls one hundred and eighty-two French companies, and two hundred and thirty outside of France. The vastest of these is the Czechoslovakian firm of Skoda, which built the great cannon Austria used in the war.

During the great war, Germany's forces occupied French territory known as the Briey Basin. Without the Briey supply of iron ore, Germany could hardly have continued the war. Yet, in 1916, when Briey was in range of the big guns of the French Second Army, scarcely a shell fell within the district. So long as the French let Briey alone, the Germans did not bombard Dombasle, the French source of ore supply.

It was a nice gentleman's agreement not to upset the applecart of war, so that the war would go on and wartime profit go on, we are told in this amazing article.
